Christian Chaplains for the Japanese Armies

SOON after the outbreak of hostilities, the Japanese War Department issued a private instruction authorizing the divisional captains to attach two chaplains to each division of the army. As the instruction made no discrimination between Buddhist, Shintoist or Christian chaplains, the request was made by foreign missionaries that some, at least, of the new chaplains might be Japanese Christians. They found that the subordinate officers, with whom the power of appointment rested, were not disposed to accede to the request. Through the good offices of the British Ambassador, Sir Claude Macdonald, and Count Inouye, one of the leading Japanese statesmen, the matter was brought to the attention of the cabinet. This body at once reaffirmed the broad and impartial position of the Government in religious matters by giving special permission for the sending of six Japanese and six British or American chaplains with each of the three armies operating on the Asiatic mainland. These Christian chaplains will receive government transport to the front. It is expected that the Christian foreigners resident in Japan will provide for the incidental expenses of the English and American chaplains, and that the Japanese Christians will perform a like service for the Japanese chaplains. Following this significant step comes the information from Bishop Awdry, the English Bishop of South Tokyo, that the Japanese Government has ruled that all native interpreters who accompany foreign correspondents in the present war must be Christians. This action is taken on the ground that for this important post men of absolute reliability are desired, who will represent, fairly, the interests of Japan.

*A Japanese
Statesman
On Religious Liberty*

JAPAN'S attitude in the matter of religious liberty has been recently expressed by Count Katsura, the Prime Minister, in an official message to the representatives of the Christian Churches in the Empire. Anticipating that the feelings aroused by the war might result in serious differences between people of different nationalities and religious beliefs, instructions were issued to local officials with regard to the protection of Russian residents in the empire and the Christians of the Russo-Greek Church. The Prime Minister felt that this attitude of impartiality was the more necessary, since the present war is one carried on against a professedly Christian nation. He desires that "the whole nation should give practical effect to the policy so clearly set forth in the imperial edict, that this is a war that has no other object than the safety of the Empire and the peace of the Far East." He hopes that no one "will be betrayed into the error of supposing that such things as differences in race or religion have anything whatever to do with the present complication." "Regarding religion as an essential element of civilization," Count Katsura continues, "I have uniformly tried to treat all religions with becoming respect, and I believe it to be an important duty of statesmen, under all circumstances, to do their utmost to prevent racial animosities."

*The Grace of Giving
in Honolulu*

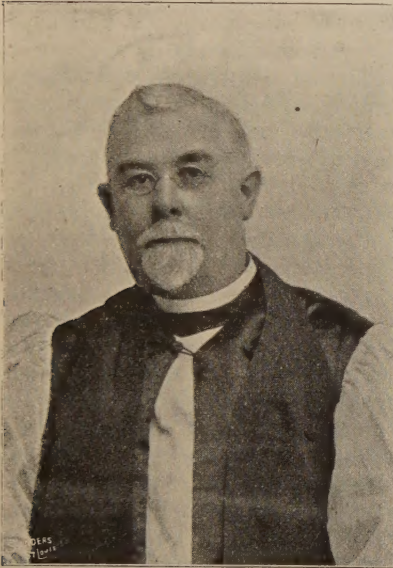

BISHOP RESTARICK has recently been very much encouraged by gifts, both within and without the district, for the extension and increased effectiveness of the Church in Honolulu. On Easter Day the offerings at the Cathedral were for the enlargement of the building, which is no longer able to accommodate the worshippers who come to it for the Sunday services. Nearly $9,000 were given at this time by the local people. The Bishop's effort to secure $20,000 for the purchase of the property formerly occupied by the family of General Samuel Chapman Armstrong, widely known as the founder of the Hampton Institute, has been rewarded by the receipt of $11,000, given by friends in the United States and Honolulu. This property, when secured, is to be used to house Iolani College, and will thus carry on the traditions of the training of native youth with which General Armstrong's name and life are identified. More recently a layman in Southern Ohio has told Bishop Restarick that he would like to be responsible for the enlargement of the good work which St. Elizabeth's mission is doing among the Chinese. In addition to religious services, the mission maintains an industrial school for children and a night-school for adults. It has been effective in bringing a number of Chinese men into Christian living. The purchase of property and the erection of a new building is to involve an expenditure of not less than $11,000. While all this special effort to secure necessary equipment has been progressing, the Honolulu Christians have not forgotten to do their share for mission work in other parts of the world. Some gifts have already been received on the district apportionment, and the full amount will certainly be given this year, as last. The Sunday-school children, too, have made a worthy record, their Easter offering for general missions amounting to $166—about five times as much as their last year's gift. It is no wonder that this progress in giving, as well as the steady growth of the Church in numbers, makes Bishop Restarick feel confident of the future.

*Foreign and Home Missions
in Texas*

BUT a little more than two generations ago the present State, then the Republic, of Texas, was foreign missionary ground, so far as the American Church was concerned. Her first missionary to Texas, the Rev. Caleb S. Ives, sent out in 1838, was commissioned by the Foreign Committee of the Missionary Society. The church he built in Matagorda, now only a deserted village, was at that time the most westerly Episcopal church on the continent. Texas was the first foreign field to which the Church sent a bishop, the Right Rev. Leonidas Polk, D.D. With the large inclusiveness of those early days, he added to his care of Arkansas and the Indian Territory the provisional charge of Alabama, Mississippi and the Republic of Texas. In 1845 Texas became part of the United States of America, and four years later was organized into a diocese. Of its spiritual future, the men of that time were apparently not sanguine. Man after man was elected to the episcopate, and—declined. So ten years rolled by, and Texas was still a diocese without a bishop. At last, at the memorable General Convention which met in Richmond in 1859—the same from which Henry Benjamin Whipple went into the then wild Northwest as Bishop of Minnesota—Alexander Gregg was consecrated first Bishop of Texas. His record, like that of Bishop Whipple, who was consecrated on the same day, is written on the face of the land where he worked and in the lives of the people whom he served. In 1874 the missionary districts of Northern Texas and Western Texas were set off from the original diocese. For thirteen years under Bishop Elliott and for sixteen more under Bishop Johnston, who succeeded him in 1888, Western Texas has progressed steadily toward the dignity of diocesan life. At its last convention, held May 11th, 1904, the Missionary District of Western Texas became the Diocese of West Texas, and elected Bishop Johnston as its first bishop. In the meantime, in 1895, Northern Texas became the Diocese of Dallas, assuming the support of its bishop, the Right Rev. Dr. Garrett. Thus the foreign mission field of 1838 has become one of the greatest of American commonwealths, including within its area of nearly 240,000 square miles three dioceses of the American Church. Do missions pay?

The Achievements of Thirty Years

DURING the thirty years of its life as a missionary district Western Texas received $180,000 in appropriations from the Missionary Society and about $250,000 in special gifts. Most of this money has gone into clerical support—the maintenance of the living preacher of the Gospel. Some of it has built churches, and some has helped to establish useful diocesan institutions. Three of these—St. Mary's Hall for girls, the West Texas Military Academy for boys, and St. Philip's Industrial School for colored girls—represent, with their modest and still incomplete endowments, the investment of $126,000. Thirty years ago there were only six churches, now there are forty-two; then no rectories, now an episcopal residence worth $12,000, and twenty rectories; then there were six clergymen, now twenty-six actively engaged; then there were 500 communicants, now 3,000. Then there was no Episcopal Endowment Fund, now about $35,000 are in hand or in sight, with $20,000 more to come from the Harold Brown Fund and the Board of Managers. While it has been slowly making its way to diocesan support, Western Texas has gladly made its gifts for missions at home and abroad—as well as within its own borders. In each year of the Apportionment Plan the district has given considerably more than its apportionment.

Because Western Texas has become a diocese, it does not follow that it will no longer need aid from the Church at large. It is still missionary ground. It deserves and must have aid in extending the Church widely and planting it strongly. It cannot, at present, maintain its diocesan organization and give its diocesan mission field all that the present opportunities and needs require. From the point of view of a large-minded Christian statesmanship, it is as much to the interest of the Church in New York or Pennsylvania, or Massachusetts, as it is to the Church in Texas, that the mission field of the Diocese of West Texas should be properly worked and developed. To bishop, clergy and people, who at no small sacrifice have accomplished a worthy task, we offer hearty congratulations.

The Outlook for Evangelistic Work in China

work in the Province of Kiangsu, which constitutes the District of Shanghai. "Hitherto we have had to persuade people to be taught. Now they come to us themselves, not one by one, but in numbers. Near Zangzok there has been such a movement and now again from I-jau, a place near Wusih, comes a petition for a Christian teacher. Nearly one hundred men have put their names down on the roll of inquirers. The Ts'ing-p'oo district, near Shanghai, is the same way. The only thing that hinders our doing a really big work is that we have not a sufficient force of foreign clergy or native workers to do what is crying out to be done. That there is a strong movement toward Christianity setting in is evident. We must be equipped to meet it. It is an actual and not a hypothetical need which we have to supply."

The Woful Lack of Workers

AND yet, in spite of this growing demand for Christian teaching, Bishop Graves is compelled to see some of his best plans go for nothing. A redistribution of the mission staff has been made necessary, chiefly by illness, resulting from overwork. This has compelled the withdrawal of foreign clergy from Wusih and Zangzok. It is hard to chronicle a retreat at these important centres—Wusih with about 200,000 people, Zangzok with over 100,000; but, as Bishop Graves says, "the men are not to be blamed. They lack neither determination nor devotion, but they cannot be expected to do impossibilities. We opened these stations in the faith that the Church would send us reinforcements, and, if we have had to retire because this has not been done, no blame can attach to our men. If appeals could have done anything, there have been enough of them in the past. We will do the best we can with the force we have; that is all I can say."

The Needs of Medical Work Among Chinese Women

THAT mission work is appreciated by some of the foreign officials in China, is shown by the action of the Court of Consuls at Shanghai, which has contributed from charitable funds at its disposal about $1,000 to St. Luke's Hospital and a like amount to St. Elizabeth's Hospital for women. This aid came most opportunely, for St. Luke's especially was hard pressed for money. It receives no appropriations from the Church at home, but is entirely supported by contributions in China from foreign firms and the Chinese people, supplemented by the fees charged those who are able to pay for medical treatment. The medical staff, like the evangelistic staff, is totally inadequate to meet present needs. This is particularly true with regard to the work among women and girls, who are the keenest sufferers from Chinese ignorance of medical and surgical science. In the Shanghai district there is not one woman physician; Hankow boasts one. In most parts of China the woman may suffer and die without the foreign doctor, if a man, being allowed to come near her. A woman physician would be eagerly welcomed. Is it any wonder that Bishop Graves says: "I cling to the hope that the women of the Church will rise to the opportunity and give me the right woman to do this work. A woman can do it better than a man, if she will. Unless they do so soon, however, I do not feel that we can go on with women doctors. And yet, the pity of it! A chance to spend one's self for these poor women out here and to do so much good!"

Philippine Notes

BISHOP BRENT has recently been in Northern Luzon, visiting the missions at Bontoc and Baguio. At the former station he dedicated the two mission houses occupied by the members of the staff, and at the latter consecrated the new church. As Baguio is the official summer capital, and the place generally selected by the missionary societies as a sanitarium, a number of visitors were present, including Governor Wright and General Leonard Wood, besides one Presbyterian and two Methodist clergymen. The offering of over $400 will be used to complete the furnishing of the church. An altar having already been given, Bishop Brent hopes that friends in the United States will help by providing the necessary altar furnishings. Work in the neighborhood of Bontoc has been developing so rapidly that reinforcements for Mr. Clapp have become imperatively necessary. Mr. and Mrs. Staunton, under whose supervision the Baguio church and rest house have been erected during their residence of a little more than a year, have been transferred to Bontoc. During his trip in the North, Bishop Brent found that much "head-cutting," or "head-hunting," was going on among the natives. He thinks this practice results almost entirely from religious superstition. The Igorotes believe that it is necessary to "take a head" occasionally in order to appease the anitos, or spirits, and thus secure a good harvest. The difficulty of getting food supplies from Manila and the coast points to the interior is increasing greatly, because of the scarcity of native carriers. Bishop Brent is therefore planning to provide these missions with a pack train of twenty burros, but in order to do this he must have help from his friends at home. The cost of an animal, with the necessary equipment of ropes and saddles, would be about $80.

A Government Official's View of Missions in Africa

SPEAKING recently at a missionary meeting in England, Sir Harry Johnston, the British High Commissioner of Uganda, expressed his appreciation of an opportunity to bear his personal testimony to the great value of missionary work in that country. With the "flippant persons who claim that the untutored savage was happier in pre-missionary days," he disagreed entirely. It is impossible for anyone knowing anything of African life where missions are not at work, and then seeing the changed conditions brought about through Christian teaching, to entertain such an idea for a moment. His careful observation had convinced him that the consistent and successful effort of the missionaries had been to elevate the people as natives of Africa and as citizens of their own country, the assertion of some, that missionaries tried to make the natives into imitation Europeans, notwithstanding. Missionary influence is being thrown steadily against the native societies which make secret murder a fine art. Throughout the continent, in addition to their Christian teaching, missionaries are training the natives to work intelligently and profitably with their hands. Moreover, the missionaries are the most fair and reliable champions of the natives in their relations with foreign governments. Whenever, said Commissioner Johnston, any act of a government is opposed by the general body of missionaries, it is safe to conclude that the policy in question is not only unfair to the natives, but unpractical; for in the long run it is always unpractical to do wrong.

One Thousand Miles on the Yangtse River

BY THE RIGHT REVEREND FREDERICK R. GRAVES, D.D.

THE Presiding Bishop having asked me to take the oversight of the Hankow District until a successor to Bishop Ingle has been selected and consecrated, I planned a Lenten visitation of some of the up-river stations preparatory to recommending the budget of appropriations for the fiscal year beginning next September.

Leaving Shanghai on the steamer Kiangyu March 10th for Wuhu, I arrived there on the 12th. There were no candidates for confirmation, but there was a good deal of business to do in settling with Mr. Lund the site of the new church and consulting with him as to the plans for it. I attended the morning service on Sunday, and in the afternoon read evening prayer for the members of the foreign community, and preached. This service was held in Mr. Lund's house. Monday morning was occupied with mission business, and in the afternoon I started west again, intending to stop at Nganking, but the weather proved so bad that I went on to Hankow, reserving the visit to Nganking for the down journey.

Hankow was reached on the 16th. The first and most important business was the preparation of the estimates for appropriation for the next year. The failure to secure from the Board last year a sufficient sum to cover the cost of the work already in hand had put the finances into disorder, but with the granting of the amount asked for in the new appropriation all will go well next year. On the 17th I went with Mr. Sherman and Mr. Gilman to see the land which has recently been presented to the mission by one of our Christians in Hankow. There are two pieces and they form a most desirable property which will soon be in use for Church work in place of the quarters which we now rent in the neighborhood, and which are not well fitted for the purpose. On the 18th I crossed to Wuchang for a meeting of the Standing Committee and spent the night with Mr. Wood and Mr. Maslin. In the evening, by Mr. Jackson's invitation, I made an address to the boys of the upper classes in Boone School. Next morning, after calling on everybody on the compound, I crossed to Hankow again and managed to get off a number of letters for the trans-Pacific mail. In the afternoon I had my first sight of the railroad. It affords a striking contrast between the Hankow of to-day and Hankow as I knew it long ago. It is wonderful to see how the city is growing. Houses are going up in blocks and the business and population are steadily increasing. Crossing back to Wuchang Sunday morning, I confirmed a class of seven at the Church of the Nativity and then returned to Hankow to confirm a class of twenty-three at the afternoon service. As the steamer Tayuan was to leave at four the next morning, I went aboard in the evening. This was the first time I had ever travelled by a Japanese steamer on the river, and I found the journey to Ichang quite as comfortable by this line as by any of the others.

At Hankow, all was going well and everyone had all it was possible for him or her to do. In Wuchang, of course, the principal topic was the new building for Boone School, which is to be the memorial to Bishop Ingle. A site was selected on land we already own, and it was determined to draw plans at once, a duty which Mr. McCarthy undertook. Education is progressing in a wonderful way in these parts. The Chinese are waking up to the necessity of having a modern education. Boone School is filled to overflowing and has to refuse applicants continually.

Reaching Ichang March 24th, I found Miss Huntington, Mr. Huntington and Mr. Goddard were all well. The new school building was progressing finely and Mr. Huntington was very busy with this and his classes in the school and with the normal class of teachers. The educational movement amongst the Chinese has reached Ichang too, and various schools have been started by them. This does not affect our work, however, but instead makes it possible for us to do work of a higher class. On the 26th I confirmed eight men in the morning and with Mr. Huntington went aboard the Tayuan at night to go to Shasi. Here we arrived at noon Sunday, and in the afternoon I confirmed seven people at our chapel. It was very encouraging to see the progress that had been made here as well as at the other stations. The new church is large and commodious, and we have now plenty of room for the school work. What we need in Shasi more than all else is a hospital. A grand work could be done there if only we could get a building started. It would be the only hospital for that section of the country and would prosper famously, I feel sure. For $7,500 the building could be erected and equipped. While in Shasi we were most hospitably entertained by Dr. Stuhlmann, the Commissioner of Customs. On the 30th the Kuling, a mite of a boat, came in, and I left for Hankow, where I arrived on the morning of Good Friday. Saturday morning was full of mission business and at three o'clock, I confirmed a class of twelve, partly from Hankow, partly from Wuchang, and partly from Hwang-p'i. I left Hankow by another Japanese boat for Kiukiang that night, and arrived in the early morning in a pouring rain and high said, "Are you the gentleman from Hankow?" and, when I confessed that I was, he told me that Mr. and Mrs. Hodges would give me shelter. Under their hospitable roof I had breakfast and then at the morning service confirmed one foreigner. Our Chinese service was at three o'clock, when ten were confirmed. Though I sent the deacon to open Kiukiang in 1901, I had never seen our place, the diocese being divided soon after. It was a great pleasure to see what a good lot we had secured and how all the work was provided for in the house which

wind, a morning as unlike Easter as possible. I got myself and my bags ashore and got a man to carry the latter up the bund, though I had no idea as to where I was to find shelter. As we went along, however, a boy came running out and stands upon it. Mr. Gilman, who is in charge, had been in Kiukiang since Good Friday and this was his third service for the day, with a fourth to follow at five. Shortly after, his boat came in and he started back for Hankow. My boat was expected at midnight but did not get in until four in the morning, when I went aboard and to bed.

We reached Nganking at 5 p.m., and Mr. Lindstrom, Mr. Lee, Dr. Woodward and Mr. Hwang were on the hulk waiting for me. We went up to the compound

* Mr. Fu is supported by the congregation of Epiphany Church, Chicago, through an arrangement with the Board of Managers of the Missionary Society. His name appears in the parish papers as one of the clergy staff of the parish, with duties at Hsinti, China, instead of Chicago. Individuals or parishes desiring to be represented in China by a native worker, at a cost of from $50 to $200 a year, may communicate with the Editor.

and I had a chance to see how much things had improved and progressed here too. The evening was full of the usual mission business. That is a comprehensive term for a variety of things. When the Bishop comes to a station everybody has plans and schemes for the work, or difficulties which need to be adjusted, or money which the Bishop is relied upon to find; there are questions relating to all sorts of matters Chinese, from grave questions about the faith down to the latest troubles with the heathen or complications in the purchase of a lot of land; there are building plans to be looked over and criticised, and accounts to be attended to. "Mission business," I called it, but "mission business" takes one from the United States to China and back again more than once in an evening, and from deep questions of theology to the peccadilloes of the gatekeeper or the way to sow grass so as to get a spot of green around the house. One must be ready for everything and everybody in turn, and to do one's best to give good counsel and sympathy. There is an element of toil in it, it is not altogether easy, but I think I like it better than anything else I have to do, because one feels that here is a chance to help the work by helping the workers; one comes in from the outside and can hold the scales even in this way, and really be of assistance. And then, too, the people are so ready to take advice, even when it does not agree with their own view of the case. To know the good in missionaries one needs to be a missionary bishop and see how they forget their own troubles and difficulties and lay aside their own preferences for the good of the work and the best interests of the mission. It was the evening's talk at Nganking which led me into this digression, but it is the same experience at every station, and always has been, and I count it one of the greatest privileges one can have that men and women who are burdened with the work and its perplexities should be willing to come to one with so much confidence and ask advice. I think that is the way the missionary bishop and the missionaries get to know each other best.

Next morning I attended the services in the hospital ward and went out with Mr. Lindstrom and Dr. Woodward to look at a site which they have in mind.

"GOOD-BY TO THE BISHOP"

The Chinese in the boat have taken the Bishop off to the river steamer which is to carry him to Hankow

At eleven a class of five was confirmed. After lunch I went over to the hospital to see Dr. McWillie's clinic. The doctor and his wife have been working with us for the past year and very successfully. The hospital is full and there seems to be a good and religious tone about the work. At four o'clock I held a short devotional service for the members of our own and of the China Inland Mission, and in the evening got on the Kutwo as she went down river. We got to Shanghai April

7th. The whole journey of nearly 2,000 miles along the river had taken just four weeks. The total number of confirmations was seventy-one. I came back feeling that everything was progressing satisfactorily, and that everybody is trying to do his duty. These short notes cannot convey the impression made upon me by the progress which was so noticeable in all the stations; all is going well and the mission is steadily going ahead.

"A LITTLE COUSIN WAS TO BE BURIED THAT DAY FROM A HOUSE NEAR BY"

Two Porto Rican Incidents

BY BISHOP VAN BUREN

THERE is a poor little settlement near our house, typical of hundreds in the interior of the island. To-day, in one of the houses or huts, a poor woman died, very old and totally blind. She was said to have been over ninety years old. The entire family were screaming terribly, and were heard all over the neighborhood. I went to the house to do what I could. One woman was on the floor, apparently in convulsions, and two men were holding her by the hands and feet.

The house was filled with sympathetic friends and neighbors, some of whom joined with me when I said the Creed and the Lord's Prayer in Spanish. But the family kept up such an outcry that my voice was scarcely audible when I tried to read some of the comforting words of the Bible. How much of the demonstration was sincere and how much a concession to custom or possible hysteria, I cannot say. All I know is that it was equally distressing and short-lived. Inside of half an hour, all had subsided. The body had been removed for burial just before I reached the house, and my poor, futile offices were all the Christian ministrations had in that humble house of mourning. Burial services here are very imposing when the rich man dies; the poor rarely have the rites of Christian burial; death and life alike are devoid of ministration at the hands of any minister of the Gospel. If I had Bible-readers, or missionaries who could hold services from place to place, we might do something, although it is best to plant churches and gather in the people. But the great difficulty is the lack of those who can minister to them in their own tongue.

A NUMBER of peóns, or peasants, have been working on the grounds at the new episcopal residence. The other day one of them said he could not work that afternoon, as a little cousin of his had died and was to be buried that day from a house near by, where the family lived. I asked if there was to be any minister present. "No." "Then please give my sympathy to the family, and ask if it would be agreeable to them for me to come and read the Oficina de Sepultura, and tell them there will be no charge." He brought back word that the family would be greatly pleased. I went, and found the house filled with a well-dressed, clean and quiet company, and the body of the little boy laid on a table, nicely dressed, and flowers all over the table, while other flowers were being arranged in a cross, and the men were putting ornaments on a little casket. I read part of the burial office, in Spanish, and said the committal. So that little one had Christian burial. I asked the father to bring to me the name and other statistics for my register. He came with them next morning and, after thanking me for what I had done, added: "And now if at any time you need me, for anything, call on me, by night or by day." No comment is necessary. O for a Spanish-speaking missionary right here!

Suicide—Cheap and Easy

BISHOP GRAVES sends this note from an English paper published in Shanghai and adds this comment: "It is little touches like this which show the condition of China under the surface."

"The people of this place have one specialty: a cheap and effective way of committing suicide. This is done by cutting the heads off the contents of two boxes of matches, pouring warm water on the same, and drinking the decoction. This does the business quickly and surely. Compared with opium and arsenic taking, this method has advantages (from the standpoint of the would-be suicide). Opium and arsenic both cost more money than matches, and the going out to purchase them attracts attention. Nobody need know anything about the matches till it is too late to save life. That people should even economize on the means of suicide is a sign of the times. The high taxation of every article by the likin officials, and the rise in Imperial taxes, is causing great distress, and the poorer classes, as usual, feel the strain the greatest. With no hope of anything better in this world at all events, it is not to be wondered at that cheap and easy methods of suicide are sought for."

BISHOP BRENT has been asked to deliver the Paddock lectures at the General Theological Seminary next winter. He proposes taking for his subject "The Incarnation and National Life," laying special emphasis upon the missionary duty and opportunity of the Church and the Nation.

SO far this year, St. John's Mission, Ashley, Pa., with 35 communicants, has given $77 for missions. This is just one-third of its total income. A similar record by 1,000 other congregations would put the mission fields beyond the fear of reduced or insufficient appropriations.

PRINCE PU LUN AT ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE, SHANGHAI

The gentleman in the rear seat of the automobile is presumably Consul General Goodnow. The scaffolding in the right-hand corner is that surrounding the new College building, Yen Hall.

Prince Pu Lun at St. John's College, Shanghai

BY THE REVEREND ARTHUR S. MANN

REFERENCE was made in THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS for June to the significant visit of Prince Pu Lun, one of the members of the Chinese royal family, to St. John's College, Shanghai. Through the kindness of Leslie's Weekly, we are able this month to reproduce a photograph of the Prince and his party, taken in front of one of the college buildings. Many people will recognize Dr. Pott and Professor Cooper in the foreground of the veranda, while Mrs. Cooper stands just to the rear. The Rev. Arthur S. Mann, writing about the Prince's visit, says:

"He was dressed in a gorgeous embroidered yellow coat, over a blue silk gown, and wore the famous peacock feather in his cap. His face was impassive, and showed no striking features, but he surprised all who talked with him by his range of reading and study and his general knowledge of affairs. On his tour of inspection through the laboratories, museum and recitation halls, he completely won the heart of Professor Cooper by showing a considerable acquaintance with the various chemicals neatly ranged around the "lab." The museum also proved of great interest to him, from the stuffed birds to the specimens of minerals, even though it is not as extensive as we might like to have it; for, as some one put it, 'It is lucky he saw our museum before visiting the Exposition, and not after.' A glance into the dormitories, where the boys live in Spartan simplicity, ended the inspection, and the party left the building.

"An amusing scene was enacted outside, immediately afterwards, while the party was waiting for the automobile to be brought up. A search was made for the smallest boy in the crowd of awe-struck students standing around at a respectful distance, and, one after another, three youngsters were dragged up, in fear and trembling, to be presented to the Prince and asked their ages. Considering the reverence that the Chinese show for authority, they must have been very deeply overcome, and, indeed, their faces were a study. However, they were doubtless very proud of it afterwards.

"This visit passed over very quietly at the time, but it is worth calling attention to, not only from the fact of the good effect it is sure to have on the standing and reputation of the college among the Chinese, but because, in a way, it marks an epoch in the work here. Who would have said, four years ago, that such an event would so soon be possible? It is an indication of what we here are beginning to feel, the stir and enthusiasm of the awakening of China. China seems now to be at the beginning of a mighty movement which is destined to be one of the great events of world history, and here we are in the thick of it. Among our students there is an intense and deep-seated ardor for the honor and progress of their country. We are sending forth men who are eager to bring to it 'Light and Truth'; eager for education, for honesty and justice in the courts and government, and for the social, moral and spiritual advancement of their countrymen. Young China is not dead, it is alive; and it is going to give a startling account of itself in many ways. Such an event as Prince Pu Lun's visit shows how far it is possible for Western education to enter the country. There is no lack of pupils to fill the schools opened for them. St. John's this term could take only fifty out of 265 applicants. From such facts as these it seems as if the day of change had come at last, and China were about to take its place in the brotherhood of Christian nations."

The Ingle Memorial

THE Board of Managers of the Missionary Society has asked the Church to join it in the plan to commemorate the life of the late Bishop Ingle, of Hankow, by the erection of a new building for Boone School, in Wuchang, to be known as "Ingle Hall."

The increased demand in China for Western education, under Christian auspices, makes it most important that Boone School should be properly equipped. The applications for admission now far exceed its accommodations. The school is steadily earning more money from tuition fees and, as a result, has recently purchased additional property and erected one building. A second building is, however, a necessity, in order that a collegiate department, for which there is a great demand, may be properly organized.

To June 1st, $2,765.59 have been received for this purpose. Fifteen thousand dollars is the least amount for which a proper building can be erected. May we not hope that, without further delay, and as a mark of our appreciation of Bishop Ingle's service and sacrifice, of our loyalty to the cause for which he gave his life, and of our desire to commemorate that life worthily, additional gifts may speedily be made? The erection of the new building should begin not later than September 1st. Gifts may be sent to Mr. George C. Thomas, Treasurer, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York, marked "For the Ingle Memorial Fund."

New Mexico and Arizona Notes

BY BISHOP KENDRICK

RECENTLY we held our convocations, for Arizona at Tucson, for New Mexico at Albuquerque. The year for Arizona was our best year in that district. The year for New Mexico was not so good. A year ago, things were the other way. New Mexico was in the lead.

Last month I spent two Sundays at Gallup, which is still without a clergyman. The Rev. Mr. Dye has also given a Sunday since Mr. Wood's visit, in April, on his way to California. The mission has been vacant since September 1st, 1903. It ought to be supplied at once. It must be associated with the mission at Winslow. We can raise from the two places and mission funds $800. Is there no good man who would come?

I am writing from the Fort Defiance Hospital. I feel anxious for it. It is dependent entirely on Miss Thackara.

I have never dared to accept the financial responsibility. It has simply grown to be what it is. It has come to pass, year by year, step by step. This is the only account that can be given of it. I did not originate it. I have never stimulated it. I have helped it all I could. It is pre-eminently "Miss Thackara's Hospital." It is doing good work. Its evangelistic purpose is pre-eminent. The hospital is the means, not the end. Miss Thackara tells me that it costs $5,000 a year to run this hospital. This is a good deal of money, but I do not know that it could be done for less. I am giving the hospital $500 a year from the United Offering of the Woman's Auxiliary. With the few and small specials coming in, I shall not be able to do this much longer. During my visit I baptized seventeen Navajos—men, women and children.

"WE MAY POSSIBLY SEE THE FAMILY SITTING IN THE MIDST OF THE RICE-STRAW EATING THEIR MID-DAY MEAL"

A Heathen Town in Japan

BY THE REVEREND JOHN C. AMBLER

UYENO is an old castle-town, and an important evangelistic centre. The province of Iga, in which the town is situated, is about three hours by rail from Osaka, and, though of quite limited extent, it is very populous. As many as twenty villages can be counted from any prominent point in Uyeno, and as one looks at them he is reminded of our Lord's words, "Let us go into the next town, that I may preach there also: for therefore came I forth." If we peep into one of the farmyards of this rural district, we may possibly see the family sitting in the midst of the rice-straw, where they have been winnowing the rice, and eating their midday meal. They are now engaged in drinking the national beverages, tea on the one side, and saké, or fermented liquor brewed from rice, on the other. Some people say that saké is "practically harmless." It is hard to reconcile this with the scientific statement that it contains "from fourteen to forty-five per cent. of alcohol." We are told, too, that drunkards are rarely seen in Japan, which is true; but the natives will tell you that drunkenness in the homes is so common that a large proportion of those in the country districts drown their household cares before retiring to rest, in liberal potations of saké. The domestic scene we are now looking upon is peaceful and attractive; but we have only to penetrate under the surface of such lives to a very small extent, to find out the real tragedy of living in a heathen land. In Uyeno the most substantial buildings are occupied by saké sellers, and it is astonishing how many of these shops are seen in this town of about 10,000 people. Uyeno, situated as it is, in the midst of a wonderful amphitheatre of beautiful mountains, is surrounded with glorious scenery. The fields are covered at certain seasons with great areas of waving rice. But the best of the rice crops must go into the brewing of saké, and the people are content to live on inferior food if they may only get enough of this drink, with all of its baleful results, to take away the ennui and distresses which grinding poverty en-festival of the Tenjin temple will show that hero worship and devil worship are the pervading ideas in this form of belief, which is called "the national religion of Japan." It will be noticed how many children are taking part in this festival, for it is sought to impress upon their young minds that, as he is the god of calligraphy, it is only through his help they can learn to write.

AN IDOL CAR OF THE TENJIN TEMPLE DRAWN IN RELIGIOUS PROCESSIONS IN UYENO

tails. We make our way along the ancient road, used no doubt in feudal days, which takes us over the hill and down into the main street of Uyenō. In the very centre of the town stands the Shinto temple known as Tenjin, consecrated to the worship of a Japanese hero, who was after his death apotheosized under this name. The cow, upon which he is said to have ridden, has a recumbent statue in bronze adorning the temple grounds. The illustrations of a

Our preaching chapel is situated only a few doors in front of this temple of Tenjin, but there is no conflict between the two resulting in deeds of violence, as there probably would be if this were a Buddhist temple. The reason is, that Shintoism does not depend for support upon the alms of the parishioners, as does Buddhism, but it is indemnified by the Japanese Government. A care-taker lives in the temple grounds, but he is not infected with any especial odium toward the Christian religion, and the Shinto priests only come for ceremonial purposes; while the Buddhist priest lives in the temple and is exceedingly jealous lest any of his flock shall stray, the weightiest reason for his opposition being of a financial nature. We are told that "with moral teaching Shinto does not profess to concern itself." "Follow your natural impulses, and obey the Buddha." Buddhist temples are seen here and there in Uyeno, and "A Young Men's Buddhist Association" exists, we are told, in the place; but Buddhism here, as elsewhere, has no real influence, except over the lives of the old and infirm.

As we wander about, we are struck with another feature in the religious situation, which is, the prevalence of many forms of belief of a lower nature

CHILDREN AND ADULTS IN UYENO WEARING MASKS AND COSTUMES FOR THE OBSERVANCE OF THE TENJIN FESTIVAL

Mikado's decrees," is the sum of its theory of human duty. The sermon forms no part of its institutions, nor are the rewards and punishments of a future life used as incentives to right conduct. The continued existence of the dead is believed in, but whether it is a condition of joy or pain is nowhere revealed. The word "Shinto" means "way of the gods," and was first used when the Indian religion entered Japan to distinguish it from Butsido, "the way of

than those already named. For instance, a sign board on one house tells us that the tenju, a mythical creation with a hideous red face and very long nose, is worshipped there. Tenrikyo, the "Religion of the Heavenly Reason," also had two places of worship in the recent past, but one has been abandoned. Much suspicion rests upon this religious cult, for it was invented by an old woman, who assumed to have séances and connection with enchantments and "dark acts" under various forms. It is thought to have very demoralizing effects on its votaries, and has been in many instances suppressed. But, because religious life is at very low pressure in Japan, it has had an immense spread among the people. As a result of these and many other forms of belief, the moral condition of the people is certainly at a very low ebb, and the real benefits of religion in elevating the nature of man are practically unknown.

At the night service will appear, as was recently the case on a visitation to Uyeno, a carpenter, who has been eight years a Christian, and who has walked about eight miles from his mountain home to the service; the station-master at Uyeno, who has been a Christian for about twenty years, and who has come about two miles for this little meeting. There is also a young man of about twenty-one, who is an earnest inquirer, and who has come about seven miles and expects to walk home on the same night. On the last visitation there, over 100 persons came to hear.

We have only recently begun work again in the city of Uyeno, as we were obliged to suspend operations there, owing to the want of a worker. As we have succeeded in renting a house, which is most eligible as a preaching chapel, we are looking forward hopefully to the future, and we ask the prayers of all at home. A Cumberland Presbyterian station is the only other mission in this town.

The Leonard Memorial

WHEN Bishop Leonard, of Salt Lake, died last December, it was felt that some commemoration of his life and work, in a permanent form, should be made by the Church at large. It was decided to invite gifts for the erection of a home for nurses in connection with St. Mark's Hospital, Salt Lake City. This home was one of the projects which Bishop Leonard had most closely at heart, and it was uppermost in his mind during his last illness. Shortly before his death he wrote: "It is only right that the people who give themselves with unselfish devotion to the care of the sick should have a comfortable place in which to rest when off duty. Fifteen thousand dollars would meet this need. It is a burden for me to bear. I pray that lovers of humanity may come to my rescue."

Twenty-five thousand dollars are needed for this home. To June 1st, $3,552.55 have been received. Further gifts may be sent to Mr. George C. Thomas, Treasurer, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York, marked "For the Leonard Memorial Fund."

Who Will Buy a Bell?

ONE morning last month a letter reached the Missions House from Bishop Rowe, asking that a church bell be shipped immediately for the new mission in Fairbanks. He stipulated that it should weigh at least 350 pounds, because sound does not carry well in the cold, rarified winter atmosphere of Central Alaska. Haste was necessary, if the bell was to reach Fairbanks before the closing of navigation. By four o'clock the same afternoon, arrangements had been made to forward the bell. The manufacturer, who has helped Bishop Rowe on previous occasions, supplies the bell at the lowest cash price, and prepays the freight to San Francisco. From there, one of the Alaska trading Companies will take it in charge and deliver it free at Fairbanks. Even with this help, the bell will cost Bishop Rowe $150. Somewhere, among the readers of THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS, there is one who desires, we know perfectly well, to relieve the Bishop of this expense, and thus be represented in this new Alaska community by the signal which shall call the people to worship. The bell will bear the inscription, "Oh, Ye Ice and Snow, Bless Ye the Lord." We hope that the person who wants to give this bell will not wait for any one else to do it.

Medical Work in West Africa

BY AGNES P. MAHONY

ON March 25th, the Feast of the Annunciation, six weeks and two days after leaving New York, I reached Cape Mount for the second time. The day was so stormy that for a few hours the surf-boats could not come out to the steamer after we had dropped our anchor. When a boat finally reached us, I saw Mr. Matthews, wrapped up in a rubber blanket, with rubber boots and with a storm hat on. He was looking much better than I had expected to find him, though still very sallow and thin. He told me that he had been in excellent health since his return from the Canary Islands. Although the steamer reached Cape Mount early in the morning, I was not able to go on shore until nearly dark.

It was so encouraging to be met by the governor of the town with the words "Welcome home," and the Liberians as well as the natives seemed all glad to see me. I had written to Mr. Matthews asking him to secure me a place in the village, in which to live until after my house was erected; but he told me there was no place fit for me to live in, and that I had better stop at the mission house until my home was ready. The next day I found that I could get one room in an unfinished house, so I hired it for $4 a month, and in it I will start the dispensary work as soon as the medical supplies come. In the meantime I am getting things together ready for starting a Sunday-school.

After a day or two of rest on shore, we started out to select a site for the home. I wish my friends at home could have seen the procession of natives, Liberians, and mission boys, with Mr. Watson, Mr. Matthews and myself bringing up the rear; everyone seemed so interested. We selected a place on one of the hills about a mile from St. John's station, with a good water supply. The location will involve some climbing, but I shall soon become used to that, and I will have the advantage of surroundings which ought to help me keep my good health. One other advantage is that I can ask for several adjoining acres of ground from the government, because nearly all of that hill belongs to the state, and I wanted enough land to be able, later on, should the Bishop wish, to start a school for the Vei girls.

Two days after my arrival I had my first bad accident case. A native boy about fifteen years old was brought to us with a fish-hook deeply imbedded in his eye. For a moment I was appalled, to see how deep the hook was, and the bait and line hanging outside; but it had to come out. Had we not been here it must have remained in the eye until the eye-ball rotted out or the boy died of blood-poisoning. I cocainized the eye and with my thumbs held back the eye-ball while Mr. Matthews pushed the hook backward and forward. On account of the barbed end, we had to make a second hole in the eye-ball and drag the hook right through the eye. Mr. Matthews had to use a telegraph wire nippers, the only ones we had, to cut off the thick end of the hook, but we finally got it out, to the great joy of the natives standing around, as well as ourselves. I was really astonished the last time the boy came for treatment to see how well the eye was looking. I have no hope of saving the sight, but think we will save the eye-ball. A few days later another native came up. He had been in a fight and was thrown on an upturned rake. When we saw him he had seven big holes in his body, but he is almost well now.

A BUSY EVENING IN THE BOONE SCHOOL LIBRARY

The Boone School Library

ABOUT three years ago, through the kindness of readers of THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS and their friends, Miss Elizabeth Wood was enabled to start a small reading room and library for Boone School. The books then given have proved of great assistance in the general work of the school, and have given the boys much pleasure in and out of school hours. The library, as is indicated by the accompanying illustration, is one of the most popular rooms in the school building. A capital beginning has been made, but after all it is only a beginning, and Miss Wood writes that many more books are wanted to meet the present and future needs. More advanced work is being done in English, and the first class in the college department is just completing its first year's study. All this necessitates an increased amount of reading, outside of class work. Standard works in theology, history, science, literature and reference are needed. The most convenient way of supplying this need is by sending to the Church Missions House some gift of money for the Boone School library. Those who prefer to give new books may obtain a list of the works particularly desired from the Editor. Magazines and periodicals of any kind, unless sent in bound form, had better not be forwarded, on account of the cost of transportation. Naturally, it is expected that all the old friends of the library will wish to have a share in increasing its usefulness; but there will be opportunity for many a new friend also to lend a hand.

IN THE MOUNTAIN FORESTS OF THE CUMBERLAND PLATEAU

The Church and the Tennessee Mountaineers

BY FRANCIS MOORE OSBORNE, M.A.

ONE of the best features of the training which the theological department of the University of the South gives its students is the practical experience in missionary work among the mountain people who live in the neighborhood. The Sewanee Missionary Society, established in 1879, aims to cultivate among its members an earnest and practical missionary spirit. It has, of course, its meetings for study and discussion of the great world field of missions; from these meetings the members go out to do genuine missionary work, and to them they return with the ability to impart a tone of reality to their study.

Sewanee is situated on a plateau, a spur of the Cumberland Mountains, 2,000 feet above the sea, and 1,000 feet above the surrounding valleys. Although the place is in ready communication (by rail) with Nashville and Chattanooga, yet it is in close proximity to one of the most needy mission fields in our country. So the Sewanee missionary finds his work right at his door. He plunges into the thick woods and secluded "coves" and recesses of the mountains, and finds them peopled with thousands of men, women and children of the same type as those found farther east in Tennessee and in the mountains of North Carolina and Virginia. In the ignorant contentment of their degradation probably no people in America are more pitiable, but under the influence of the Church's teaching there is no more hopeful field for missionary endeavor, and probably no human beings are more worth our attention than the children of these native mountaineers. They are of unmixed blood, and for the most part of Scotch-Irish ancestry.

During the past year members of the society have taken part in the work of fifteen missions and parishes, and that, too, save in one case, without financial compensation. These missions are from two to twenty miles from Sewanee, and are reached on foot, horseback or rail. The names of the communities suggest

ST. TIMOTHY'S SUNDAY-SCHOOL AT CLOWES HILL, A MOUNTAIN MINING CAMP

some of the characteristics of the various localities—"Roark's Cove," "Lost Cove," "The Barrens," "Jump Off," "Tick Bush."

The journey to the missions in itself requires no small sacrifice of bodily comfort, and yet a student scarcely, if ever, remains in the theological department for any length of time without taking a hand in the society's efforts. The care of one mission means an early breakfast every Sunday and a brisk three-mile walk down the mountain and back again. Another trip takes all day for the sixteen-mile drive and service at two places. The most distant mission is a little less than twenty miles away, over an up-and-down rough mountain road. This road is not easily travelled at night and so it happened that on Easter night a student returning after evening service lost his way and was obliged to wait on the mountain side all night in a raging thunder-storm, until the light of dawn showed him the path he had missed.

The missions in which the students labor are marked by different steps of development. First there are those which consist only of a Sunday-school of twenty-five or more people, who meet each Sunday in the room of a dwelling, or in the typical mountain log school-house. At this stage of his work the missionary is at first elated by signs of immediate success. But as soon as the novelty of the new teaching wears off, and the mountaineer sees that the new "preacher" has come, not to hold a "big meetin'" or an emotional revival, but to establish something among them that means a change of life, one of two things happens—indifference seizes the majority or persecution sets in. Indifference seldom possesses the whole number, but a "remnant" remains, and the missionary soon learns to place his hope in that rather than in the curious crowds that come only when special services are held and special inducements are offered.

Many examples of the kinds of persecution which the Church meets with might be given, but one or two will suffice. At one point an itinerant preacher of one of the many sects which have multiplied among the Cumberland Mountains led the opposition. First, another Sunday-school was organized, and an attempt was made to obtain exclusive use of the public school building. The school commissioners would not take sides with the opposition, so this plan failed. Then the rival school was called to meet at the hour appointed for the assembling of the Church school, in order that first possession of the building might be secured. The Church's supporters, however, were not to be outdone by this plan, and so, as soon as the scheme was noised abroad, a council was called and a line of defence laid out. It was evident that the services had to be begun before the opposition arrived. The missionary was not expected until eleven o'clock, but many hours before his coming a little group collected at the school-house. In their midst was a girl of twelve, carrying a prayer book. She was the only one there who could read, but she knew where to find the Creed and the Lord's Prayer. When the missionary arrived he found the house crowded, for both schools were present, and the Church's supporters were repeating after the girl as she read from the Prayer

Book. All around sat the persecutors in an attitude of stolid defiance, but unable to do anything, for, to use the words of a loyal mountaineer, "Nobody daren't interfere, for fear they'd get the law on 'em for disturbing public worship." Foiled again, the itinerant preacher alarmed the neighborhood with reports that the "'Piscopals" used a different Bible, taught false doctrine, and, what to the ignorant was still more disconcerting, that as soon as they all became "'Piscopals" they would have to give a tithe of their crops to the King of England under penalty of having their land taken from them. Some of the strongest showed signs of wavering at this; but finally, after a careful explanation of the difference between civil allegiance to England and spiritual succession from the Church of England, all fear was dispelled and the prejudiced opponent retired. The whole contention had grown out of the fear of the itinerant that his work would be supplanted, and that he would lose the small pittance of money

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL OF OUR SAVIOUR MISSION, JUMP OFF

The Bishop in the doorway is Dr. Millspaugh of Kansas, who, during a holiday at Sewanee, helped in the mission work. Ask the Editor for Leaflet No. 960, which tells how the Jump Off congregation gave its apportionment for missions or provisions that came to him from this one of the four or five places where he held a "meetin'" once a month.

Sometimes the persecution has gone so far as to threaten the personal safety of the missionary. But even then, as is exemplified in the experience of one of the first of the Sewanee missionaries, the principle that "The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the Church" holds true in this community. This missionary initiated a work in a new field, and when he began to succeed prejudice stirred up strife. He was notified that he would have to give up the idea of planting the Church or run the risk of suffering personal violence. One day he was even warned by friends not to return home by his accustomed route. Upon another occasion he came face to face with armed men who threatened him and let him go. Still he persisted; but the attack upon the leader dismayed the flock, and for many months not one person was brought to be baptized. Then a single member of a large family came forward and asked for Baptism and Confirmation. His family soon followed, and the crisis was passed.

The sequel to this experience is inspiring: This "first convert" left the neighborhood and found a new home in a small village about ten miles from Nashville. There his zeal for the Church led him to open a Sunday-school, and this having been done he asked the rector of Christ Church, Nashville, for assistance. The rector selected one of his Brotherhood of St. Andrew men, a young lawyer, had him licensed as a lay-reader, and sent him out. The result has been the building of a church and the final decision of the young lawyer to give up a lucrative practice and enter upon a course of theology at Sewanee, as soon as his legal work can be resigned.

The experiences of the students in their visits to the homes of these people, either to take dinner or to visit the sick, would make a story too long to be incorporated in this article if the writer attempted to tell everything worth telling.

With the erection of a building four of the country missions have gone a step forward. The cost of these buildings has been defrayed by the combined donations of parishioners, the society, and its friends.

WHO HAS GENERAL OVERSIGHT OF

But it must not be supposed that the society labors only among the mountaineers. The members also assist or conduct services in the towns near Sewanee—Cowan, Monteagle, Sherwood and Tracy City. At Cowan, the little town at the junction of the main line of the railroad and the branch line that runs up the mountain to Sewanee, the society contributed funds and assistance to a mission, and there is now a church and a parish house in the place. Under the supervision of the rector of the Otey Memorial Church, Sewanee, a teacher has been placed there by the Bishop of Tennessee, and a Church day-school has been organized.

Christ Church, Tracy City, is now a well-organized congregation of fifty communicants. Twenty years ago this mission was begun in a growing coal-mining town. With the co-operation of some of the best people of the place the small Sunday-school, which met for a long time in a saw-mill, has grown into a body of good Churchmen, which meets twice every Sunday for service in a neat church and carries on its own Sunday-school, as well as two schools among the coal miners of the neighborhood. Most of these miners are native Americans. In the congregation of Christ Church the Swiss element is important. These people come from the old Swiss colony at Gruetli, twelve miles away, and find a congenial home in our Church. The church at Tracy City points the way which all the missions are planned to follow. That is to say, each mission, it is hoped, will in its turn become a point for the dissemination of the Church's teaching and work. Besides aiding the work of the two schools, this congregation contributed during the past year more than $100 for objects away from home. Even the small branch missions were not considered too small to make their contribution to the children's Lenten Offering for missions.

"ST. ANDREW'S AT THE SWITCH"

The photograph was taken on the first Sunday after the completion of the church

Finally, in concluding this account of the efforts of the Sewanee Missionary Society, it is enough to say that Sunday-school classes or services are conducted by students in St. Paul's, Sewanee, for the negroes, at St. Mary's-on-the-Mountain for the children whom the Sisters of St. Mary have taken into that home, and at the Otey Memorial, formerly a mission of the society, whose rector administers the sacraments of the Church to all the missions mentioned in this article except those at Tracy City and Monteagle.

What is the extent of the work just described? Let a summary of the statistics of the services in which members of the society took part on Easter Day answer this question. In all, the society assisted in or conducted seventeen services, including five celebrations of the Holy Communion. At the services there was a total attendance of 741 people to whom was brought the Church's message of Christ's Resurrection.

THE COUNTRY CONGREGATION AT ST. JAMES'S, HANCH'UAN

A Chinese Country Congregation and Its Need of a Church

BY THE REVEREND ROBERT E. WOOD

ONE of the most promising fields of labor in China is in the country districts. This is certainly true of the work in Hanch'uan. A houseboat journey of about fifty miles from Hankow, up the Han River, brings us to this town. Our work began here in 1892. We have the entire field to ourselves, so far as the Protestant missions are concerned. St. James's Church in that place, with the neighboring country stations, has a communicant list of ninety-four and over 400 baptized members. This congregation sorely needs a church building. The chapel used at present has a seating capacity of about 150. It is simply a big Chinese house made over for the purpose. In former days it was quite sufficient, but that is very far from being the case now. Many of the people walk in several miles from the country to attend the services. Often when they arrive they find the building already crowded, and are obliged to stand up, or to remain outside. The Rev. Nieh Ts'ang Fah, their pastor, has made provision for the country-folk by having morning and evening services very close together—the former at 10 A.M. and the latter at 1 P.M. In this way, those who come too late for the earlier service, or are crowded out, can attend the later one, and still get back to their homes in the country before dark. One o'clock seems to us, perhaps, rather early to say evensong, but it suits the needs of St. James's, Hanch'uan, very well. When the weather permits the country-folk to get to church, crowded congregations are by no means an exceptional thing. But the present building necessitates the turning away of numbers of Christians, to say nothing of catechumens and enquirers. The list of catechumens, by the way, at present numbers over sixty.

A Chinese Country Congregation and Its Need of a Church 501

Recently I visited Hanch'uan and held a series of meetings, something on the order of what we would call a "mission" at home. The Sunday morning congregation crowded the aisles. The interest and enthusiasm were a great inspiration to me. The picture of a large Chinese congregation ministered to by a native priest made me hopeful for the future of the Church in China. This is what we ought to see everywhere, and we will, in time. But, in the meantime, the help from without must necessarily continue.

In the matter of the church, I am only going to ask for a minimum, for the people are able to do a part themselves, and indeed they have for some time helped themselves as much as they could. The house for their priest and other buildings were largely their gifts, and just recently they have contributed generously toward a fine, strong, high wall to enclose the church property on the street side, and have erected an imposing entrance-gate and gate-house. They are very proud of this structure, and it certainly is a fine piece of purely Chinese decorative work. It stands up high above the neighboring houses, and the large cross that surmounts it can be seen from many parts of the city.

But the Christians say: "Yes, the external appearance is very fine; but inside there is nothing worth looking at. Now that everything is ready for the church, can you not think of some plan to help raise the money?"

We need $1,500 beyond what the people here can give. I am writing this with the prayer that some at home will help.

THE INTERIOR OF THE HANCH'UAN CHAPEL

Is it strange that the Christians think "inside there is nothing worth looking at"?

Missions at the General Convention

Boston, October, 1904

THE Press Committee of the General Convention has issued this bulletin, giving in outline the plans it is expected that the Convention will adopt, for the discussion of missionary matters:

"Several sessions for the consideration of missionary subjects will form an important feature of the General Convention of the Episcopal Church when it meets in Boston next October. Arrangements for these sessions are in the hands of a special committee of bishops, clergymen and laymen, who will submit a programme for the Convention's adoption. When the Convention considers missionary matters, it sits as the Board of Missions in one house, the bishops joining the deputies in the discussion.

"The first session of the Board of Missions will be held Friday morning, October 7th. It is probable that at this time the annual report of the Board of Managers of the Missionary Society will be presented, and that the work of the past year, both on its practical and financial sides, will be reviewed by the Rev. Arthur S. Lloyd, D.D., General Secretary, and by Mr. G. C. Thomas, of Philadelphia, the Treasurer. At this session, also, it is expected that the committee appointed at the last General Convention, to make suggestions for modifying and improving the missionary organization and methods, will present its report. There is likely to be an interesting discussion concerning some modifications of the Apportionment Plan for raising money for missionary support. This plan was adopted at the San Francisco Convention, at the suggestion of the Bishop of Montana, and has proved exceedingly successful, but there are some who believe that a change in its method of application is desirable. The work of the district secretaries will also be reviewed, and possibly some step toward increasing their number will be taken.

"The triennial service of the Board of Missions is to be held in Trinity Church on the evening of October 9th. The Right Rev. Charles H. Brent, D.D., Bishop of the Philippine Islands, formerly rector of St. Stephen's Church, Boston, has been asked to preach the triennial sermon.

"It is expected that four of the afternoon sessions of the Convention will be devoted to hearing statements from the missionary bishops and others representing the various fields and phases of the work the Episcopal Church is maintaining in this country and abroad. One afternoon will be devoted to missions in the Philippines, the Hawaiian Islands, Porto Rico, and Cuba. Bishops Brent, Restarick and Van Buren will report to the Convention the progress made in their respective fields during the last three years, and the need for further extension. In view of present conditions in the Far East, it is proposed that China and Japan shall have an entire afternoon. Bishops Graves, McKim and Partridge will give information concerning the opportunities for work in those two empires. To Brazil, Alaska and Africa a third afternoon has been assigned. Bishop Kinsolving has come from Southern Brazil to attend the Convention, and will speak on behalf of his large diocese. Bishop Rowe, who has recently completed a remarkable and dangerous winter journey through Central Alaska, will tell the Convention something of his experiences and observations.

"Bishop Ferguson, the only negro bishop in the American Church, will speak about his work on the West Coast of Africa. The fourth afternoon will be devoted to the consideration of work among the white people in the mission fields of the West and South and the special missions for the Indians and Negroes.

"The General Convention will meet in Emmanuel Church. The business headquarters of the Convention will be in Copley Hall, where there will be provided a post-office, a telegraph and a telephone office. A luncheon will be served there daily to the deputies.

"The Woman's Auxiliary headquarters will be in Pierce Hall, Copley Square. Tea will be served there daily by women of different parishes in and near Boston. and daily conferences will be held there."

In addition to these plans, a committee in Boston is planning for three striking missionary mass meetings. The first will be held in Tremont Temple on the evening of Monday, October 10th; addresses will probably be made on "Church Extension in the Western Hemisphere" by bishops and other speakers from the field. The second meeting will be held in Symphony Hall, on the afternoon of Sunday, October 16th, with addresses by bishops from abroad on "Church Extension in the Eastern Hemisphere." On the last Sunday afternoon, October 23d, it is planned to have a great children's service in Trinity Church, under the auspices of the Sunday-school Auxiliary.

Ways and Means

Some Things the Editor Sees and Hears

Summer Addresses

THIS is the time of year when every mail brings many requests from readers of THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS that the magazine should be sent them, during the summer months, to a country address. THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS rejoices that so many of its readers can take a long holiday, and quickly arranges to journey to their summer homes. It will be an encouragement to many a missionary working in some hot and dusty town of our western plains, or our southern districts, or in the far-away tropics, or in some crowded Chinese or Japanese city, to remember that people, whose lines have fallen in pleasanter places, care enough about the work that goes on, through cold and heat, to follow it amidst all the distractions of holiday time. So, on behalf of the missionaries, THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS thanks these thoughtful readers.

A Breath of Fresh Air

DOUBTLESS many of them, before entering upon the refreshment of rural life, have arranged to share some of their own enjoyment by making a gift to a fresh-air fund, either in their own parishes or through one of the great city missionary societies which give such blessed help to thousands of children and tired mothers in great cities like New York, Philadelphia and Boston. If any want to help in this direction, and are at a loss for an address to which to send their aid, a note to the Editor will have immediate attention. There is opportunity, too, to help fresh-air work far away, as Bishop Partridge's brief article in this number indicates. Aid for that, sent to THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS, will be promptly forwarded.

Summer Holidays and Diocesan Missions

FROM the increasing number of missionary services arranged every year, for summer congregations, it is a pleasure to infer that the delights of change and rest often quicken the gratitude of Christian people, so that they gladly give for the maintenance of diocesan missions in the states where their homes for the time being are situated. There is great need for such kindly assistance from city dwellers, particularly in those three states of northern New England, whose inspiring mountains, glorious coasts and sombre forests are causing them to become the nation's playground. The Editor knows a New York City clergyman who, these many years, has given freely of his strength and of his holiday time, to hold three services every Sunday in a little crossroads school-house among the New Hampshire hills. Here the people of the farms, most of whom have never seen an "Episcopal church," and the summer residents, who represent several different religious bodies, meet for common worship. At every celebration of the Holy Communion the offering is for diocesan missions. Missionary meetings in summer are not, however, confined to the work of diocesan missions. Many a summer congregation will have its vision of the world-wide Kingdom of God made more clear and real through the recounting, by those who have temporarily left their places in the working line, of the great things God is doing for human life through the service of men and women.

How to Keep the Publication Department Busy

IT seems probable that THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS will be found on many a summer veranda this year. May we not hope that many friends will take advantage of the more or less informal summer life to commend the magazine to other Church friends who are not already familiar with it? If every person who has requested a change to a summer address should be the means of securing one new subscriber, the publication department would be kept much busier in July and August than is usually the case.

Wanted: An Address

SOMEbody will be disappointed because of failure to receive a copy of our hand-book on The American Church Mission in China. I hope this failure will not be charged to negligence in the Publication Department, or even to that much abused individual "Uncle Sam," who runs the United States post-office. The whole trouble is that the person who wanted the pamphlet, and to whom we should like to send it, failed to make any mention of his or her address. This correspondent is a reader of THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS, we are sure, and perhaps will see the letter if the Editor prints it here:

"THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS:

"Enclosed you will find twenty-five cents in stamps for the 'American Church Mission in China of 1901.'

"Yours truly,

"June 9th, 1904."

In the meantime, the remittance will be held in the Treasurer's Department with a number of other similar items awaiting owners, for "L. Borel" is not the only person who has forgotten some necessary detail of name or address when sending money and an order.

How to Invest Fifty Cents

POSSIBLY the editor ought to take this occasion to say that he hopes many other people will follow the example of the writer of this letter, in ordering a copy of The American Church Mission in China. Its maps and illustrations, as well as the text, supply a good deal of information about the work the Church is trying to do. A companion pamphlet on the Church's work in Japan, with the title Nippon-Sei-Kokuwai is equally valuable. Either of these can be obtained from the publication department for twenty-five cents; but please be sure to give your town and street address.

Why Not Support an "Own Missionary"?

THE REV. NIEH TS'ANG FAH, HIS WIFE AND CHILD

MR. and Mrs. Nieh have done faithful and successful work at St. James's Chapel, Hanch'uan, China. The hope of this congregation for a new church has been expressed by the Rev. Mr. Wood on page 500 of this number. May not this Chinese pastor soon have a message that people in this country will join with his own people in erecting a worthy church? Possibly some individual or parish in the United States would like to have the privilege of paying Mr. Nieh's stipend of about $125 a year and thus make him its "own missionary." The Editor will be glad to supply particulars. Note the reference to Mr. Fu on page 482.

How the Children Give

NO one person can begin to understand all the youthful devotion and sacrifice represented in the Easter offerings for missions from the Sunday-school Auxiliary. It would be impossible to read some of the letters coming to the Church Missions House, enclosing such gifts, without being at once humbled and inspired by the facts they relate. Here, for instance, is a portion of a letter telling how some of the little ones in the home of The Merciful Saviour for Crippled Children, in Philadelphia, succeeded in giving more than ever before.

"At the beginning of Lent, the children, as usual, asked me to get materials, so that they could make some money for missions. Boys and girls alike hemmed towels, made fancy articles, and sold everything to visitors. Two little girls sent their Lenten savings, to be added to the sum, and when, on Easter Day, the banks were opened, and the money was counted, the sum total was $112.77—better than ever. Each year has shown an increase. The little ones in the solarium, six, eight and ten years old, begged to do something, too, and they cleared $4.25. It is really wonderful. God blesses these hampered lives, and He fills them with joy. I wish you could have seen the beaming faces when the money was offered on Sunday morning, in a white muslin bag. We read to them from THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS, and they decided to ask that $50 be used to support a bed in one of the hospitals for children in China, the rest to go to general missions."

The gift of these crippled children for missions is considerably larger than the gift of the average congregation.

LOOKING DOWN THE RIVER AT CAPIZ

From Iloilo to Capiz

Notes of a Prospecting Tour on the Island of Panay

BY THE RIGHT REVEREND CHARLES H. BRENT, D.D.

SHORTLY after completing the journey in northern Luzon, described in recent issues of THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS, I arranged for a short visit to the Island of Panay, two days to the south. Iloilo, its chief city, stands next to Manila as a port, though just at present it is less prosperous than formerly. The Rev. Mr. Spencer was stationed here for some months, but has recently been transferred to Zamboanga, on Mindanao, the southernmost of the large islands of the archipelago, where no other mission is at work, and where is great need of doing something for the American residents of the town and the many pagan tribes of the surrounding country.

Our trip to Panay was without any special incident. The entrance to the harbor is exceptionally beautiful. To the south lies the large island of Guimarás, which has been chosen as the site for an army post. Iloilo is an island. What appears to be a river is an arm of the sea, which encircles a bit of land, detaching it from the mainland, and on this the town is built. Although it is much farther south than Manila, I understand that it is not as warm a place, as it is swept by the wind, and the air is in constant motion. Our visit was during the hottest season, and except that in the middle of the day the heat was overpowering, we were not uncomfortable.

The Presbyterians have a work in the town, both for Americans and for natives. Dr. Hall, a medical missionary, has a dispensary and small hospital. He is a devoted man of a fine type, and impressed me more than any missionary I have met in the islands. He speaks Visayan fluently, and preaches in that tongue. He is overburdened, and I fear for his health. In the adjacent town of Jaro the Baptists have a mission. The New Testament has been translated into Visayan, but, unfortunately, the Baptists have insisted on their own interpretation of the Greek word for "baptize." It necessitates a new translation, if the Presbyterians wish to put the vernacular into the hands of the people whom they teach. I had thought of establishing medical missionary work in Iloilo, but the ground seems to be fairly well covered, and it would be a waste of energy to overlap Dr. Hall's devoted work.

There are quite a number of communicants of our Church in the place, and on the Sunday following our arrival Mr. Spencer had a celebration of the Holy Communion in the early morning at the Y. M. C. A. rooms. Mr. Collins, who is in charge of the Y. M. C. A. work, showed us every courtesy. A word of commendation should be spoken for the excellent service that has been rendered by him and his associates. Not only in Iloilo, but in Manila and elsewhere, wherever the Y. M. C. A. has established a post in the Philippine Islands, much good has been accomplished.

The chaplain at Camp Jossman is a Roman Catholic, a thorough-going American, with a broad vision of the Church's work. He called on me on my arrival, and we had a long talk regarding the situation. I arranged for a morning service at the camp, and sailed over on a prao, a very pleasant mode of locomotion, if you have a good breeze behind you. The hour fixed for the service was unfortunate, so I did not reach very many, but had an interesting morning among the soldiers. Camp Jossman stands high above the sea, and is considerably cooler than Iloilo. The view is beautiful. Unfortunately, the mosquito that causes malignant malaria is found in close proximity to the camp, and I was told that there has been much sickness on this account. I returned to Iloilo in a prao crowded with natives, and had a rather interesting experience among them. Our afternoon service was fairly well attended, and in the evening I addressed a meeting, which crowded the rooms, on "The Splendor of the Human Body."

I happened to drive out to Jaro on Monday afternoon, and there I found a constabulary inspector who was to leave for Capiz early the following morning, so I prepared for a trip on horseback across the island. I had to make an early start from my quarters in Iloilo in order to get to Jaro at five-thirty, which was the hour of our departure. The constabulary people courteously provided me with a horse. He looked as if he were not up to very much, having a rather moth-eaten appearance, but he proved to be of good tough material. Our retinue consisted of a number of native constabulary men and their wives and children, who were to make the journey of eighty miles or more, chiefly on foot.

The scenery in Panay is much more tropical than that in northern Luzon. There are many palm trees, which add greatly to the picturesqueness of any district. To the west is a mountain range of considerable height, but the country through which we travelled was level, and the road was quite good for a considerable distance. In nearly all the towns through which we passed there seemed to be much poverty. There was a great deal of complaint about ladrones, and the long drought, following on the pestilence of cholera, had discouraged the natives.

We had an extremely hot ride the first day, stopping for a short time at Santa Barbara, and making Patoton, a distance of twenty-four miles, by night. Although the presidente here complained of ladronism, we could not help feeling that it was very much at home under his rule. The chief of police spoke good English. He spent some time as a sailor in English waters and lived for a short period in Liverpool. We learned nothing encouraging about the work of the native padres in the various towns through which we passed. The constabulary inspector with whom I made the trip was free in his expression of opinion, he himself being a communicant of the Roman Church.

On the morning of the 9th we left for Passi at an early hour. A town was celebrating a fiesta of some sort, and it was trimmed with all the brilliancy of Filipino decoration. It was interesting, not to say amusing, to see a number of little children in American straw hats; and where did the boys learn to use whip tops? In the early morning we made a stop at a town called Dingle. The presidente here is a fine looking, active fellow. Although the island is almost destitute of carabao, within the limits of his jurisdiction there are 3,000. Indeed, it was the only prosperous-looking place that we saw. He said there was no ladronism, and added that there was no need of a town being afraid of ladrones, if the citizens would but show a little courage. He was very proud of the number of carabao there were. The people are religious, so far as fiestas are concerned, but beyond that there was not much appearance of devotion. I attribute this very largely to the rule of the Filipino padres, who command no respect.

The country through which we were now passing is the finest I have seen outside of the Cagayan Valley. The problem of irrigation is simple, compared with that of southern California, but the question of roads is paramount. I do not quite understand why statute labor is not imposed on the people. The land tax is not being paid or, at least, a small proportion of the people are paying it, and there are no funds for road work. The alternative of a tax or so many days' work on the roads each year would accomplish a great deal, in my judgment. One of the most disastrous tyrannies in the islands is a kind of industrial slavery. The richer Filipinos get control of whole families through loans of money, and it results in the poor people being robbed of their liberty and any possibility of developing themselves.

We reached Passi late in the afternoon, and, after taking dinner with a friendly Spaniard, who represented the Tabacalera Company in that country, we sought rest. Here we had to leave our carts, and had great difficulty in securing cargadores. The next stretch of our journey was across a pass, not difficult, but where the road is impassable for any but foot passengers and those mounted on horseback. The country is extremely beautiful. There was once a good road across the pass, but it has degenerated into a trail. Before we got far we had our first taste of rain, and it was very grateful. We had not the least desire to escape. The experience of getting wet was refreshing.

We rested at the house of the presidente in Dumarao, and were shown some of the work in hats which is done in that part of the country. They resemble the "panama," but are not quite as white nor as durable. That night we were unable to make the town at which we had hoped to camp. After a pretty ride through long avenues of palms, interspersed with a tall, straight, red-barked tree, the name of which I do not know, we stopped at Cuartera. We had hoped to get something to eat here, but the place was desperately poor. There was no rice; indeed, there was no food in the town, except some corn, so the whole of our company went to bed supperless. To add to our discomfort, the inspector was taken ill, and I felt quite anxious about him. The next morning he was better, and we made an early start for the town of Dao, which we had hoped to reach the night before. We did not stop there, but pressed on to Panitan, thinking to get some breakfast at that place. When we reached there, we found the place stricken with cholera. We dare not take any food, and the water supply was so bad that we could not quench our thirst. Except for some cocoanut milk and a few biscuits that we had with us, we were without food for a stretch of twenty-four hours. The inspector was so ill at Panitan that I had to leave him behind, and I rode on alone to Capiz, which is on the northern coast of Panay.

The problem of the whole island seemed to be a lack of water. In Capiz two kerosene tins of water (ten gallons) were sold for fifty cents (Mex.). I believe it was selling for even more in Iloilo. The only place in the Philippines which has a water supply brought from any distance and distributed through hydrants is Manila. General Hughes considered the possibility of bringing water from the mountains to Iloilo, and it is a great pity that his plan did not carry. It is obvious to anyone who has studied the situation at all that one of the first sanitary measures necessary for the larger towns is the establishment of a pure water supply. Cholera has been spread, and the same thing will happen again, owing to the unsanitary way in which water is used. Sometimes it comes from wells which are foul, sometimes from cisterns of rain-water which soon stagnates and becomes poisoned with all sorts of disease germs.

There are several Americans in Capiz, nearly all of whom I met. Unfortunately, lack of time prevented me from holding a service here. One has to take the first means of transportation in sight or else be stranded for an indefinite period. A little army launch was about to return to Iloilo by the east coast, leaving on Saturday, and as no one knew when there would be another chance to get back, I arranged to sail on her.

A group of natives in Capiz, soon after I arrived in the Philippines, wrote asking me if we could give them services. Before a reply could reach them, a Baptist had gained their ear, and a mission was started among them. Of course we refrained from interfering in any way. Ordinarily there is no need of overlapping in religious work in the Philippine Islands. The amount of territory is great, and the number of people untouched by any form of Christianity affords ample scope for the full energies of any church. When one takes into consideration that Mindanao is unevan-gelized and, in spite of all that has been said to their discredit, contains a people who, in many ways, are superior to those in the north, we need not cast our eyes far afield for work. The Moros are but a comparatively small portion of the inhabitants, and the interior is teeming with a population of pagans. It is a great satisfaction to have Mr. Spencer at work in this district.

I started on my return trip at noon on Saturday, being the only passenger. The captain of the little launch was a boyish North Carolinian, honest and proof strong language was concerned, it was a matter of small importance as compared with blasphemous terms. One was vulgarity, and evinced a lack of self-control—the other was one of the most hideous of sins. He admitted it all, and I tried to show him that, if he was going to control others, he would have to learn first of all the lesson of self-control. In the course of our conversation he told me that he used to be a chorister in one of the noted choirs in the South. He was a true sailor, with his clear, blue eyes and fair curly hair, but the one

fane. The boat was sixty-five feet overall, with no cabins or deck accommodations. We were towing a lorcha loaded with nipa for Camp Jossman, and as the wind came up in the night it grew very bumpy and rough. Finally we had to anchor off a light near the extreme north-east of Panay. I slept late on Sunday morning, but the captain's profanity woke me. I spent a large part of the day in a frank talk with him, and I found him at bottom a really charming fellow. His philosophy was by no means crude, and his profanity was a habit which he himself regretted, and from which he would like to have cut himself free. I said to him that, so far as his use thing that betrayed him was an undisciplined mouth.

It was interesting to hear him talk about the sea and its beauty. Our trip was one of exceptional splendor. All that coast of Panay is diversified, and in the bright sunlight the varying colors added greatly to the charm. My captain-friend made one very naïve and sailor-like remark. He was speaking with enthusiasm about the joy of navigation, and what interest he found in charting rocks and studying a coast. Stopping short in some description that he was giving, he said: "Now I have known you for a couple of days; but if we were to part and I was to see you in two weeks, I would not know you from a chicken; but do you see that rock over there? I have set my eyes on it only once, but I will never forget it."

I found when I reached Iloilo that this young sailor was considered one of the most competent navigators among the Army employees, and that he had a future ahead of him. I do not want to give a wrong impression of him, and I would not have my readers think that his one characteristic was profanity. He really thought of deep things and talked about them in that frank, boyish way, free from all self-consciousness, that is so delightful. Among other topics which he brought up was immortality. He spoke of it with a shrewd kind of logic that one does not often meet with.

A wait of two or three days in Iloilo for a Manila steamer enabled me to make some calls and visit some of the large sailing ships lying in the harbor. I found a young man in the military hospital who was supposed to be dying, and ministered to him. The nurses' house, which was occupied by quite a number of nurses whom I knew, was near by, and I paid a brief visit there. On Monday I had a baptism, a number of little children helping to form the congregation. One boy remarked, when his brother told him he ought to be baptized, that he did not see the good of baptism of babies, for "that baby did not understand the service." The elder of the two brothers had been baptized, and the following day their mother said to the younger one that she thought he ought to be baptized. His ready response was, "Why?" and his mother told him it would make him a better boy. He answered, "It did not make my brother a better boy." I think that we have a considerable sceptic in that young man.

The work of the schools was pleasantly illustrated in one of the inland towns of Panay. I was resting in the house of a Filipino, when the small boy of the family came and stood at my elbow. I asked him, in Spanish, his name. He told me, and then said in English, "And what is yours?" I gave him the necessary information, and he said, "Will you spell it for me?" which I did. He wrote it down and retired to a corner to study it. After awhile, he returned with the name registered in his little brain, and we had a pleasant conversation in English. The little children are very winsome and approachable. They are merry, active and sweet-tempered. It is quite too bad that they should learn the taste of tobacco in infancy. Even babies know how to smoke. One little girl of four or five in our constabulary escort, the daughter of a soldier, had a cigar six inches long, at which she puffed with gusto. Nor is this an exception. I shall be glad when we have some of the children wholly under our care.

"I RETURNED TO ILOILO ON A PRAO."

BISHOP PARTRIDGE'S FRESH-AIR FUND WILL HELP TO SEND LITTLE ONES FROM HOT AND BUSY STREETS LIKE THIS IN OSAKA

A Japanese Fresh-Air Fund

BISHOP PARTRIDGE asks THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS to say that he has received funds sufficient to provide all the portable altars and sets of altar vessels needed in the District of Kyoto for the present. "It is very seldom indeed," he writes, "in mission life that we have to ask people to restrain their gifts; but in this case I am limited by the number of actual churches." There are other ways, however, in which help can be given to the District of Kyoto and the Bishop. "I need surplices and stoles for the clergy, brass crosses, flower-vases, book rests, etc., all of which can be estimated at about half the catalogued price in the United States. Several of my churches have no fonts and would be thankful for even a very small one. I had a most pathetic appeal this week for one to cost about $20. I need cassocks for my theological students and catechists. These can be well made here for a cost of eight dollars (gold) each. Everything for this purpose I put into what I call the 'Vestment Fund,' and it would rejoice my heart to have a little balance in this fund whenever appeals came to me.

One hundred dollars (gold), for instance, would fill this full for the present. Will not some devout Church soul at home make this offering toward the reverent conducting of God's worship in a land where all this appeals so directly to a people trained in order and neatness?

"But one thing that is pressing upon me now more than anything else is my 'Fresh-Air Fund,' which is the only thing I have to call upon to give the wives and children of my Japanese workers a breath of life-giving air during the intense heat of the summer, and especially to care for these little ones in sickness, where we have no hospital or medical men. I want thank-offerings from faithful people at home, whose little ones have been restored to health by God's mercy. I want memorials from those whose loved ones have passed from beds of pain and sickness to the arms of the Good Shepherd, to help me to extend the same blessings and mercy that we have in Christian America to these dear little sufferers in our Island Empire of Japan. The fund is now overdrawn $250. I need immediate help before the summer's heat comes upon us."

Bishop Rowe's Training for His Work in Alaska

To the Editor of THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS:

WHenever I read accounts of Bishop Rowe's dangerous winter journeys, I long to have someone who knows of his life as a young priest remind the Church that his training began in those early years when he was enduring hardness in the wilds of Northern Michigan. The value of his example to the young clergy would be even greater if they could know how loyally, though all unconsciously, through those first years of his ministry, he was responding to the Divine training for the high call of the Church that came to him in 1895.

The old officers of the Michigan Auxiliary would all remember how this young priest, when he could "afford" to come to the Lower Peninsula for the diocesan convention, was an unfailing source of inspiration. Those absolutely simple "talks," haltingly given often, and minus any flowers of rhetoric, warmed our hearts and enlarged our vision. Bishop Harris, no doubt, could have predicted for this obscure young priest just such opportunities for service at the front as have since come to him, and I know he was glad of the growing appreciation in the Auxiliary of a missionary in our own diocese who so unconsciously impressed his hearers with his own spirit of consecration.

"That which suddenly comes is always gradually prepared for"—this thought has led me on to write. It was in the wilds of Michigan and while serving the Church at Sault Ste. Marie, that through his voluntary work in lonely places and remote Indian settlements, Bishop Rowe's resourcefulness and general equipment for the Alaskan problem were acquired. In those days some women belonging to the Indian Rights Association were endeavoring to help, in a dire emergency, some Indians in the Upper Peninsula, but had failed to find a responsible channel for their contributions. Finally I offered to write the Rev. Mr. Rowe, asking advice. Promptly came the response, saying he would gladly be our almoner himself. I wish I might have had the insight to preserve the business-like report he made of that long mid-winter journey through the wilderness. Without a touch of self-consciousness, it told the facts in regard to this little Indian community—its aged sufferers and young children—and manifested the same spirit of joy in service that marks the letters from Alaska. Reminding him, a few months ago, of the old experiences in Michigan as compared with his missionary episcopate, he replied, with his ringing laugh: "Yes, it is just about the same thing over again, with the difference of a few more degrees below zero."

I would like you to believe that no thought that you could print it has prompted this long letter. THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS is for facts concerning the work, not the workers, and we cannot praise our missionaries until they are dead!—worn out often with their lonely service trying to make bricks without straw. But I am a working woman, old, and in failing health, with no longer any time to offer in the missionary cause, and therefore I hope you will pardon the impulse which has led me to write. There must be those who know much more fully of Bishop Rowe's spirit as a young priest, and could make it live and glow before our divinity students now.

The Meeting of the Board of Managers

June 14th, 1904

THE Board of Managers met at the Church Missions House June 14th. There were present of the elected members: The Bishops of Albany (vice-president, in the chair), Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Pittsburgh, Nebraska, Long Island and Massachusetts; the Rev. Drs. Eccleston, Smith, Applegate, Vibbert, Anstice, Alsop and Washburn; and Messrs. Mills, King and Morris. The Bishop of Porto Rico, an ex officio member, was also present.

The Assistant Treasurer reported that the increase in contributions to June 1st of last year over the preceding year was $33,956, and that this large increase had been held this year and that there had been added $8,111.85, making the increase as compared with two years ago $92,067.55.

The Sunday-school Lenten Offering receipts for ten weeks since Easter were from 3,332 schools $107,512, an average of $32.26 per school, while for the corresponding time last year receipts came from 3,284 Sunday-schools, amounting to $103,613.39; an average of $31.55 per school.

He also reported that the appropriations to the date of the meeting (including the deficit on the first of September last) amounted to $828,627.

Reports as to the health of Mr. George C. Thomas, Treasurer, continue to be favorable.

A large number of communications was received from domestic bishops with regard to the appointment of missionaries, their salaries and stipends, for the remainder of the present and the next fiscal year and, except that action with regard to the appointment of women workers in the domestic field was laid over, the bishops' requests were all favorably met.

Bishop Rowe is sending up a fine bell to Fairbanks, Alaska, for the use of the congregation and the town, and the Rev. Hudson Stuck has secured a large number of books for the miners' library there, which, under arrangements that he and the Bishop were able to make, will reach their destination this year.

The Board, giving consideration to the work among the Swedes, received a report from the Rev. J. G. Hammarskold, showing much activity on his part during the past quarter, but especially calling attention to the important work done at the Immigrant Mission at Ellis Island, N. Y., where about 30,000 Scandinavians are landed each year. In this he has had the efficient assistance of Mrs. Nordbladh, who is now about removing with her husband to the Missionary District of Duluth. The expense of the work, a little less than $1,000, was met through the co-operation of a lady of New York, who herself acted as treasurer of the fund. By resolution the Board expressed its appreciation of this lady's services.

The Bishop of Porto Rico, who was present, made some statement as to his work and his plans.

Many important letters were received from the foreign field. The Bishop of Shanghai is very anxious for the appointment of another physician for St. Luke's Hospital, and still another for the Woman's Hospital. In connection with this the Bishop writes: "Mission work will never be properly done until we have something in the way of a reserve force, but will continue to be a series of advances and retreats." The separation of St. Mary's Hall and St. Mary's Orphanage has been of great benefit to the former, as patrons looked upon the former to some extent as a charity. There is still $1,850 needed for the new orphanage building, and the Board passed a resolution authorizing an appeal for this sum.

At the instance of Bishop Graves Miss Gertrude Stewart, of Rutland, Vt., was appointed a missionary to the Hankow District, subject to a full course of training in one of the deaconess houses; the expenses of the training having been pledged in advance.

The Bishop of Tokyo had recently confirmed eight at Wakamatsu and consecrated a house which serves as both church and parsonage at Fuchui, about three hours from Tokyo. He forwarded to the Board a statement of the needs of the district, which asks for but little in the way of extension, prepared at his own request by the convocation recently held. This statement corresponds very closely with what the Bishop has previously written as to the needs of the work. A number of church buildings are needed and more missionaries and catechists are necessitated by the increase of work undertaken heretofore.

Bishop Ferguson sent a satisfactory report with regard to St. John's School, Cape Mount, which he says is progressing finely under the Rev. Mr. Matthews and Mr. Ogoo. He confirmed four of the pupils in the Irving Memorial Church during a recent visit. He is expecting to leave in August for the General Convention. At Bishop Ferguson's request, a young man, a graduate of the Hoffman Institute, was appointed a school teacher at Tobacconnee Station, near Bassa. The church at Edina, which the Bishop recently consecrated, cost a little over $3,000, and it is believed that this amount was raised without outside help. The Rev. James S. Smith, the missionary, is now erecting a school-house to cost about $600 and wonders whether he can get any encouragement financially at home or abroad. The Easter offering of his Sunday-school for general missions was $65. Miss Agnes P. Mahony, soon after her arrival at Cape Mount, on March 25th, by a false step fell and broke one or two ribs. An English gunboat opportunely appeared in the harbor, and its surgeon came ashore and rendered the necessary assistance. Miss Mahony had about recovered at the time of writing. Her new house will be erected on a site containing five acres, which the Bishop regards as only second to the site occupied by the mission. Temporarily Miss Mahony has entered upon her work in a rented unfurnished house.

Upon the general subject of the care for emigrants coming to the several ports of this country in such great numbers, the Rev. G. C. F. Bratenahl, District Secretary, who had been acting in the matter for the Bishop of Washington, chairman of a committee of the Board, by invitation made a statement. Whereupon it was

"Resolved: That the matter of the appointment of an agent on emigrant ships be referred to the Committee and to the General Secretary with power; provided, first, that not more than one such agent be appointed without further reference to this Board, and secondly, that the means to defray the expenses of such agent be raised especially for that purpose and outside of the present income of this Board."

It was not supposed that it would do more than make a beginning if the committee were able to carry out the purpose of the resolution.

The Standing Committee on Audit reported that it had caused the books and accounts of the Treasurer to be examined to the first instant, and had certified the same to be correct.

Announcements

Alaska

THE REV. A. R. HOARE, who is to be stationed at Circle City, left New York on May 30th. From Toronto his wife and child proceeded with him to Los Angeles, Cal., where Mrs. Hoare will remain until he is settled at his station.

He sailed from Seattle on June 15th for Juneau, where he was to be advanced to the priesthood by Bishop Rowe on the Second Sunday after Trinity.

MR. E. J. KNAPP left New York on May 17th en route for Point Hope, where he is to relieve the Rev. Dr. Driggs. He has been heard from on the steamer City of Alaska under date of June 9th, having sailed from Seattle on the 5th. He was expecting to meet Bishop Rowe at Skagway.

Porto Rico

BISHOP VAN BUREN, after a visitation in the Missionary District of Cuba, arrived at New York on June 1st, accompanied by Mrs. Van Buren. They proceeded to New Haven the same day.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the marriage in Boston on June 15th of Miss Mary D. Gordon to the Rev. Charles S. Reifsnider, of the Kyoto Mission.

Missionary Speakers

FOR the convenience of those arranging missionary meetings, the following list of clergy and other missionary workers, at present in the East, is published. All should be addressed at the Church Missions House, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York, unless a special address is given.

China: The Rev. G. F. Mosher, of the Shanghai District.

The Rev. L. H. Roots, of the Hankow District.

Georgia: Rev. J. J. Perry, 230 White and Stratford Road, Brook-Colored Work: lyn, N. Y.

Porto Rico: Bishop Van Buren.

The Sanctuary of Missions

Giving

HAST thou plenty? Then rejoice, Rejoice and freely share.
Hast thou scanty store? E'en then
A little thou canst spare.
And hast thou only bit or crumb,
A donor yet thou mayst become.

Since morsel from thy less or least
For bird or insect makes a feast.

Be the portion small or great,
The loving, generous heart
Will always find it large enough
To give away a part.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

To the Board of Missions

DR. HAYDEN AND HER NURSES

A United Offering Missionary Physician and Her Work

BY CATHERINE P. HAYDEN, M.D.

From the United Offering of 1898 appropriations were made for the salaries of two missionary physicians—the only two women physicians the Missionary Society now supports in the mission field. One of these is Dr. Mary V. Glenton, in charge of the Elizabeth Bunn Memorial Hospital for women and children, Wuchang, China; the other is Dr. Hayden, who is resident physician and superintendent of the training-school for nurses in St. Agnes's Hospital, Raleigh.

IN the spring of 1901 Mr. and Mrs. Hunter kindly welcomed me to St. Agnes's Hospital, Raleigh. I found my duties varied, as I held the joint position of housekeeper, superintendent of nurses and resident physician, and it was several months before I felt that I was, in reality, a part of the system of the place. But now, after three years, I am well accustomed to the routine in which one day's work, in many ways, is every day's work. For we must eat, learn our lessons, scrub our wards and beds, and give our patients care and medicine day by day. It is the patients who change, and it is a new face we find in this bed to-day, and a wee bit of humanity in another bed to-morrow, who has come to this world during the quiet hours of the night.

My own pretty room is on the second floor, where I am within easy access of the wards. The outlook from this room to the green trees of the groves beyond is always so refreshing, and more especially on a hot summer's day. This room I share with Miss Wheeler, the mission visitor. At seven o'clock we go to my little dining-room, where Tamar is ready to serve breakfast. We very much enjoy the quiet of this room, for before this winter, Miss Wheeler and I have had our meals in the office, which serves also for a reception room and, on operating days, as a dressing-room for the doctors. At half-past seven we go to the nurses' sitting-room for prayers. There most of the nurses and the servants and, often, convalescent patients, join us, and we sing a hymn, repeat the Creed, have a few collects and the Lord's Prayer. After thus asking God's blessing on our work, and that we may be faithful in it, the regular duties of the day begin.

Between this and twenty minutes past eight I see any of the school-girls who may not be well, but are not in the infirmary. Then comes the housekeeping. The kitchen is in the basement, and here we find the cook ready for orders. In the laundry two women are kept busy. The set tubs, put in last summer, with the hot water, make that work so much easier than of old. Our man of the place, Greene, will be found at this time, splitting wood or working in the yard. Four years ago, he was brought with a fractured knee-pan as a patient to the hospital, and, not being able to work in the quarry again, he has remained here. I hardly know how we could get on without him, although at times he inclines, like the old-time servant, to "think he knows best!" The cook would tell you, "He thinks every one but himself should do just what Dr. Hayden says!"

On the first floor is the men's ward, a bright, sunny room with four beds. Robert is just recovering from pneumonia, Brooks from an operation; poor dear Joe, who was here some time ago for a slight operation, and whose ambition it was to enter the school as an industrial student, has returned to us hopelessly sick. We are all so sorry to see his bright, happy face growing thinner each day. Across the hall from this ward is the diet kitchen, where the patients' trays are laid, and where all special diet is prepared. We are very proud of our operating room—so white and light and clean. This is new this year. A brass plate in the wall always reminds us of Mr. Hunter's dear mother, in memory of whose ninetieth birthday the tiles were given. Mr. Delany laid them, and I well know the placing of each one, taking so much time, was done with loving heart and hands. The glass-top table was bought with money earned by the nurses at their sale. Each fall we have a little sale of fancy articles which the nurses make evenings, while I read to them; several things in the house we have been able to buy with money thus earned. On one side of the operating room is our sterilizing room, on the other side the anæsthetic room. Forty operations have been performed during the last eight months. Most of these have been major operations, and the results have been very good. Of course, constant care must be exercised that we may accomplish with the little at our command what is accomplished elsewhere with so many conveniences.

On the second floor is the women's ward, with its nine beds. Windows on three sides make it a very cheerful room. Here, when the patients are well enough, Miss Wheeler has a class for them and the nurses, on Sunday mornings. Every patient begins to talk of it Saturday night, and those who can help the nurse get the ward in order early. There are four women who have had serious operations. One is from South Carolina, one from Durham in this state, and the other two from Raleigh. Aunt Millie wanted to see the street-cars before returning to her country home. She seemed surprised to hear a prayer and a bit of the Bible while in the hospital. She "had not expected to hear any religion while here." In a side ward is little Mary, whose mother is unwilling to allow the needed operation. The child will have to go home therefore. She cries at the mention of going away from us.

CHILDREN'S WARD

One of them is "The Little Helpers" cot. In this is little Joseph, who says "Yes, ma'am," very sweetly to every question, except when you ask him if he is a girl; to this we get a decided "No, ma'am." Dear little Willie, in another bed, has severe paroxysms of pain, but in the interval is very bright and sweet, and always ready to shake hands. He has had two operations and must have a third, after which we hope he will be well as he has never been in his short life of three years. Little Majie, after a very thorough bath and removal of a tangled, uncombed crop of hair, came forth a sweet baby, who sits and sucks two fingers most of the time. In our maternity ward the little twin girls with their mother have been our great pride. Miss Wheeler made them pink jackets, and, when bathed and freshly dressed, the nurse exhibited them with much satisfaction. A "Good morning" to each patient, a look at the chart, a few words with the nurse in each ward and instructions given, and the ward visits are over, unless I return for surgical dressings later. I usually have two classes each day for the nurses.

On the third story are the nurses' rooms, open for inspection, very simply, and really only partially, furnished. Outside the hospital is the school infirmary, in the girls' building, which also comes under our charge. There we often care for those in the neighborhood who cannot leave their homes to come to the hospital. Many in the cabins about are very grateful to us for care thus given. From the mothers' meeting on Fridays we almost always get some request for medicine or care. Of course, books of hospital accounts and reports of work done must be kept.

There are often disappointments in the work, and times when we seem to be making no progress; but when we look back four years and realize the improvements in the building, and the added conveniences which enable us to care for our patients so much better, we are glad to have been able to help a little. The gratitude of outgoing patients and their friends is often touching. I think very few of them forget St. Agnes's Hospital; and in one way or another we hear of a kind word spoken for us, long after they were here. A driver for one of the stables in town says: "I drive many patients to the hospital. They cry because they have to come, and then they cry because they are going away!" At Thanksgiving the members of the mothers' meeting make some offering of vegetables, groceries and money for us. Sometimes a woman brings half a dozen sweet potatoes or a five-cent piece, with which she has walked eight miles from the country, because she "must do a little for the hospital." Last Thanksgiving little Hattie, who was for weeks in the ward, because of severe burns, and who for days was in a most critical condition, rang our bell, and came in to present me her thank-offering of $2. We are now at the place where we can grow, and we trust we may have the wherewithal.

Fire at St. Augustine's

RECENT tidings from St. Augustine's bring forcibly to our attention the need of a good water supply and proper appliances for fighting fire in such a community as that of our school and hospital, Raleigh. We relate the account of the loss incurred and danger escaped, in Mrs. Hunter's words:

alas, the water was low, and time was lost, although the boys were even then pumping. How I wished that the tank for which I have appealed was here, and full!

The fire company sent their hook and ladder people out, but said there was no use in sending hose, when we had an insufficient water supply.

Our boys worked heroically, and some of our neighbors, too. The thought in

GOING SHOPPING: THE ENTRANCE TO THE MISSIONARY STORE

Our Commencement exercises were over, and well over, and Dr. Hayden, Miss Wheeler and Mr. Hunter had gone on Wednesday evening to a lecture in the city. Archdeacon and Mrs. Hughson, our guests from Morganton, were sitting with me on our porch, when Nurse Patty came over with the tidings that the store was on fire.

I knew at once that, if the fire could not be controlled, the hospital would be in the greatest danger, so called over the telephone to Mr. Delany. He had his boys, with buckets, on the grounds in what seemed like three minutes; but, every one's mind was that the hospital must go, and then our house. The seventeen patients were removed at once; twelve of them were brought over here, on their mattresses, or the babies in the arms. One mother had a three days' old baby, another had been operated on only a few days ago.

Fortunately, the wind was from the south, and so in favor of the hospital, but only God's blessing on the labors of our brave boys saved it. It caught twice. Some of the boys were on the roof, but could not do much there, as it was dangerous to try to reach the edge. However, Mr. Delany called: "Only one thing can save the hospital, and that will be at the risk of some one's life. The corner of the eaves must be reached from the roof"; and without a word Walter McDonnell seized a bucket of water, ran up to the roof, and then slid down to the corner, with the water bucket and wet blanket. As he poured the water over, the flame died out, and a cheer went up from the crowd below. The hospital was saved! The whole end is blistered, the store and contents are burned to the ground, with a money loss of $500 or $600. But we can feel only thankfulness that it was only the store. By three o'clock in the morning the patients and furniture were back in their places.

We feel now more than ever the importance of a fire brigade from the student body, with a wagon with ladders, hooks and hose.

We must rebuild the store as soon as possible, but think it would be best to build it in connection with another building that has been on our minds for some time; a lodge to be put near the entrance to the grounds, in which we would put our looms, and have an exhibition room where we could show and perhaps sell our work. We should probably build the base of stone. I think it would cost $1,000, but possibly we might do it for $800. Who will help?

Encouragement from Ohio

IT is delightful to receive from a branch of the Auxiliary such a cheerful message as comes to us from Ohio, in its secretary's annual report. This report verifies again the oft-repeated assertion that strength comes with doing, that repeated giving makes giving again the easier.

Mrs. Bates says:

"We have paid all the money-pledges in full; the accustomed $500 to Bishop Leonard for diocesan missionary work; all the various domestic and foreign scholarships; and the salary of 'our own missionary'—that $750 which seemed so large when we first looked forward to it. We have raised more money for the Board of Missions than ever before, and have added $1,723.76 to the United Offering. More than the usual number of missionary boxes have been sent upon their way. Altogether, the gain over last year is $2,541.27.

"One thing accomplished during the year has made me particularly happy; this is the fact that we have raised our full apportionment for the Board of Missions. It is important that we all understand exactly what this apportionment means, that we may make it a part of our habitual working method. So I am going to dwell upon it a little, and I beg you to make these thoughts your own. First, we must accept this fundamental truth, that the Church itself is the great Missionary Society. Now, to carry on a great enterprise like this, the Church must delegate its management of details to a committee—and the Church's committee is the Board of Managers. This Board must map out the field and see that every post is properly manned; it must promise the salaries that shall be paid to all these missionary bishops, pastors, teachers, native catechists, physicians and nurses, the women-workers, and all. These things being true, does it not follow that every member of the Church should feel in honor bound to stand behind his committee? And should not the women of the Church, as well as the men, feel the responsibility of providing that annual $850,000 which is necessary to maintain this great work?

"We shall have to confess that this obligation has lain very lightly upon the Woman's Auxiliary. We women are too prone to let our sympathies run away with us, and to indulge ourselves in giving all manner of beautiful extras and specials, stopping with that. Too often, we are like those congregations of the early time, who gave their minister a donation party, but failed to pay his salary!

"But now, it is felt that nothing short of $100,000 towards the obligations of the Board should satisfy us, and of this $100,000 the share of our Ohio branch is $1,750. We tried faithfully last year to reach it, and nearly did so, but not quite. This year we have accomplished it; and we can stand up in all honest pride and feel that we have done 'our share.'

"Another factor of encouragement in our Ohio branch is the growing effectiveness of the Junior Department. I look forward with longing to the time when there shall be a junior branch in every parish. Why not? There are girls in all of them! By and by, (and in not so very long time either), these girls must take our places! It will depend upon them, that our Auxiliary shall not die! We older members of the Auxiliary are not doing our full duty unless, in all our parishes, we are training up a strong body of young women to be our successors.

"And is it too much to hope that among them all there may be some who will be called of God to give themselves to His work in the mission field? Have you ever asked yourselves, Why is it that our Ohio branch has had no missionary to go out from its ranks? I have had some 'searchings of heart' about that question! Have we failed to make plain the fact that it is the consecrated life that God cares for most? Have we been so busy with our boxes and our pledges, that we have failed to make manifest the inner meaning of it all?"

The United Offering of 1904

THE triennial United Offering of the Woman's Auxiliary, for 1904, is to be made in Trinity Church, Boston, on Thursday, October 6th. This is the sixth such offering the Auxiliary has made.

The $2,000 of 1889 built Christ Church at Anvik, on the Yukon, and sent Miss Lovell to Japan.

The $20,000 of 1892 and the $56,000 of 1895 were invested, and the income from them pays the salary year by year of the Missionary Bishop of Alaska.

The $82,000 of 1898 placed some fifty women in the missionary field, and largely sustained them there till the fall of 1903.

The $107,000 of 1901 gave about $3,950 to each missionary bishop and to the Committee for Work among Colored People, with which to supply pressing needs at home and abroad.

And now again the Auxiliary is called to make this thank-offering gift, which is to enlarge and strengthen woman's work in the mission field. It will be used to train women who offer for this service, to place them at their posts and keep them there, to care for those disabled.

It should be abundant, in order to accomplish all our hopes; it should be abundant, because of the abounding causes for thankfulness among those from whom as a gift of thanksgiving it shall come.

It is to be a united gift; we hope no branch, diocesan or parochial, of the Woman's Auxiliary, of the Junior Department or of the Babies' Branch, will be unrepresented in it; we wish that every member, from Alaska to Southern Brazil, from Hankow to Porto Rico, may gladly give her share. If you have no part in it yet, will you not send something now?

If your part till now has been too small, will you not add to it as you have ability, while there is yet time?

Contributions toward the United Offering may always be sent through parish or diocesan treasurers. Where these are unknown, inquire of the Secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary, Church Missions House, New York.

How the United Offering Grows

IN May the Minnesota branch of the Auxiliary held its semi-annual meeting, after which the president, Mrs. Baxter, wrote: "A letter was read from Mrs. Henry St. Clair, president of the Indian women's branch at Birch Coolie. She sent also a check for $155.51. These women are desperately poor, have had a long, hard, cold winter, and have paid for a furnace for St. Cornelia's chapel. They love to give."

In the same month in which these Indian women were sending their missionary gift, a part of which will go to the United Offering, the Hankow District branch was holding its first annual meeting, from which it sent, through Bishop Graves, an embroidered bag containing a check for $64.56, to be given at the Triennial. And as this letter reached us, a member of the New York Auxiliary was giving $1,000, her second contribution of that amount this year, toward the same united gift.

In the three months remaining, will not all, far and near, rich and poor, give, and give again, so that this offering of ours may be truly an abundant one?

The Woman's Auxiliary in Boston

MANY members of the Woman's Auxiliary are looking forward to the bright and stimulating days to be spent together in Boston, next October. The General Convention will open on Wednesday, October 5th, and remain in session probably for the following three weeks. During that space of time the Massachusetts branch hospitably offers to all visiting members delightful and convenient headquarters in the Pierce Building, Copley Square. This building is but a block from Trinity Church, and two or three short blocks from Emmanuel, near half a dozen excellent hotels, and just between the Public Library and the Art Museum. Here rooms have been engaged where the members of the Auxiliary can register and feel themselves at home during their stay in Boston; can meet their friends in the Auxiliary and among the missionaries, and have constant opportunity for gaining and giving information.

Committees of the Massachusetts branch will be ready to show every kindness, and many occasions will be offered for conferences upon Auxiliary work in all its departments, and for hearing from every part of the mission field.

For these last purposes a hall connected with headquarters, accommodating from 350 to 450 persons, will be frequently used, and a programme will be issued in due time of what meetings may be expected there.

There will be two conferences for diocesan officers, the first on the afternoon of Wednesday, October 5th, in the hall at the Pierce Building; the second, probably on Monday, the tenth, morning and afternoon, in Horticultural Hall, Huntington and Massachusetts Avenues.

The triennial service will be held in Trinity Church, Boston, Thursday, October 6th. For this service four cards will be sent to each diocesan branch, to ensure a representation of the entire Auxiliary. With the exception of the seats thus reserved, the church will be thrown open to all members whom it can accommodate.

As the church is likely to be crowded with women from many and widely different places, it is earnestly desired that before the service a reverent silence may be observed, that so all may approach with better prepared hearts and minds the great feast of thanksgiving to which they have so gladly come.

At this service Bishop Lawrence, of Massachusetts, will preach, and the United Offering of 1904 will be presented.

On the afternoon of the same day, the Triennial General Meeting of the Auxiliary will be held in Tremont Temple, 82 Tremont Street, between School and Bromfield Streets, when the Bishop of Massachusetts will speak a word of welcome, Mrs. Thayer, president of the Massachusetts branch, will preside; the roll of branches will be called, and addresses will be made.

Those desiring further information may obtain it through the Secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary, at the Church Missions House, New York.

Chinese Christians in Honolulu at Work for Missions

BY DEACONESS DRANT

DURING the spring the members of St. Peter's, Honolulu, branch of the Woman's Auxiliary worked industriously to make up some garments for St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Shanghai; and on Ascension Day we held a meeting for the purpose of learning more about our missions and allowing the Sunday-school children to add their gifts to the box. We had invited many of the heathen women, and some of them brought gifts also. About sixty-five persons were present at the meeting, and, after drinking tea and enjoying a social half-hour, we went to the chapel, where some missionary hymns were sung, the Rev. Kong Yin Tet said suitable prayers, made an address, and interpreted the address of the Rev. W. E. Potwine.

I rejoice greatly in this manifestation of the interest these women show in missions. And the heathen men in the night-school have also gladdened my heart by their co-operation in sending $25.59 as the Easter offering of St. Elizabeth's House for the support of day-schools in China. I hope that we may be able to show them some school which their money helps to support, for then I am sure they will try to do it every year. These men sent $10 also to St. Mary's Orphanage, Shanghai, "for pity of the little children," at Chinese New Year's. Mrs. Pott said that their gift had "bought every girl a Sunday best dress." And the men were much pleased that they had made these little ones happy.

Our night-school is overcrowded now, with about fifty men nearly every night. The Brotherhood of St. Andrew helps materially by teaching, and we have some other kind friends who volunteer, or we could not begin to do the work. Our Father is very good to us, and I am anxious that we may take advantage of the many opportunities He gives us. But when a Chinese man stops me on the street and respectfully but beseechingly asks me to start an afternoon school for the hotel waiters who cannot come out at night, and I know that my strength will not admit of any further tax, can you wonder that I feel my own inadequacy, and wish that I dared to venture to fill up these three afternoons which I now use for visiting, with a school for these men? But God will provide for them, I am sure. Only you must pray that He will send the workers soon.

Miss Chung En Leong Sarah is to enter the New York Training School for Deaconesses this fall, and to return to Honolulu, I hope, to be of inestimable value to her Hawaiian sisters. Miss Chung is Hawaiian born, about twenty years old, a fine kindergartner and Sunday-school teacher. She has had charge of the lace classes at St. Elizabeth's, assisted in the sewing and Sunday-schools, taught St. Peter's primary department of the day-school, and is a great favorite with all her little charges.

MISS CHUNG AND SOME OF HER LITTLE CHARGES: FOUR OF THESE CHILDREN ARE HEATHEN

All things come of Thee, O Lord, And of Thine own have we given Thee.

Offerings are asked to sustain missions in twenty-six missionary districts in the United States, Africa, China and Japan; also work in the Haitian Church and in Mexico*; in thirty-nine dioceses, including missions to the Indians and to the Colored People; to pay the salaries of twenty-five bishops, and stipends to 1,673 missionary workers, and to support schools, hospitals and orphanages.

With all remittances the name of the Diocese and Parish should be given. Remittances, when practicable, should be by Check or Draft, and should always be made payable to the order of George C. Thomas, Treasurer, and sent to him, Church Missions House, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York.

Remittances in Bank Notes are not safe unless sent in Registered Letters.

* For support of the Clergyman representing this Church.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

The Treasurer of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society acknowledges the receipt of the following sums from May 1st, to June 1st, 1904:

* Lenten and Easter Offering from the Sunday-school Auxiliary.

NOTE.—The items in the following pages marked "Sp." are Specials, which do not aid the Board in meeting its appropriations. Wherever the abbreviation "Wo. Aux." precedes the amount, the offering is through a branch of the Woman's Auxiliary.
